BATTLE RAGES AT JUAREZ

REBELS DRIVE BACK FEDERAL FORCES IN FIGHT FOR KEY CITY

EL PASO, Tex., March 8.—A battle for possession of Juarez, key city of northern Mexico, began between federal troops and rebel forces early today.

The rebels were reported losing ground and to be retreating toward the international bridge connecting El Paso with Juarez.

A rebel major and two of his men were the first reported killed in the battle.

Machine guns rattled intermittently from the tops of buildings where federal forces were entrenched.

During a lull in the fighting, civilians who ventured out into the streets reported they saw many bodies lying in the heart of the business district of Juarez.

The rebels attacking the city from every side indicated that the federal forces were virtually trapped in Juarez.

In fighting at the north of the city and barricaded themselves behind irrigation earth works before they launched their assault.

The rebels swept the streets with machine gun fire.

Hundreds of bullets hit the walls of the Hotel Rio Bravo, military headquarters and hospital center of the federal army. The rebels were reported using one of their trains to force their way into the city from the south.

An official statement issued early today from federal military headquarters at the Hotel Rio Bravo declared that the attackers had been repulsed in all attempts to advance.

In fighting at the race track below Juarez the rebels lost heavily, federal officers stated.

Federal troops that fled towards the international bridge, threw up a barricade at the Stanton Street bridge head where they said they intended to make a last stand should the rebels force them back towards the El Paso border.

If the rebels and federal forces clash at the bridge head, fire of the rebels undoubtedly would pour into El Paso where United States troops are stationed, with artillery pointed at Juarez, to protect American lives and property.

Major Daniel Galvan, military ruler of Juarez since Wednesday, crossed the international bridge into El Paso shortly after 7 a. m. He immediately went into conference with Mexican Consul Enrique Llerenas.

The Mexican federal army men in conference with Consul Llerenas were reported to be arranging to surrender Juarez to the rebels.

Two civilian casualties, a man and a woman, were added to the battle toll in the exclusive residential section of Juarez, where rebels entered the city.

Albino Frias, former chief of police who was ordered arrested yesterday, commanded the attacking rebels, it was said. The actual attacking party was said to number 800 men.

United States immigration officers announced that no aliens, even though wounded, would be allowed to enter the United States during the battle.

NOGALES, Ariz., March 8.—Mexican rebels started their first major offensive in the Sonora sector today when 3,500 troops, some of it cavalry, entrained in Nogales, Sonora, just across the border from here, and headed south.

General Francisco Borquez, rebel chief, refused to reveal the destination of the force.

The rebels, many of them Yaqui Indians, left in two trains of twenty cars each.

Horses were taken in box cars, the men riding on top.

General Borquez is believed planning to strike at San Luis, Sonora, on the western edge of the state. The town was taken a few days ago by federal forces with the announced purpose of using it as a base for air and land attacks on Ortiz, headquarters of the rebels, and Nogales.

MEXICO CITY, March 8.—The Mexican federal government launched the renewed strength of its army against widely separated rebel centers on the northern front today, admittedly facing a strengthened insurgent combination in the state of Coahuila.

Available federal troops were hurried from the conquered Vera Cruz area to the north. Military operations centered at Juarez, state of Chihuahua, Torreon, state of Coahuila, and in Sonora.

Gov. Marcelo Caraveo of the state of Chihuahua and Gov. Juan Guadalupe Amayo of Durango have joined the rebellion forces of Gen. J. Gonzales Escobar, the government announced.

Gen. Antonio Villareal, president of the rebellion, was reported to have been killed in the state of Coahuila.

COOLIDGE FOUND TRAGEDY IN WHITE HOUSE

Magazine Article Reveals Glory Of Presidency Is Overshadowed By Burden Of Personal Sorrows.

NEW YORK, March 8.—Calvin Coolidge, author, opened his mind and heart to the American people for the first time today and revealed that he found tragedy instead of glory in the White House. In an article published by the Cosmopolitan Magazine today, Coolidge mentions the death of his son, Calvin, and the passing of the president's father as two severe burdens he was called upon to bear while directing a nation's destiny.

"I do not know why such a price was exacted for occupying the White House," he wrote.

The article, entitled "On Entering and Leaving the Presidency," is the first of a series which Coolidge will write for the Cosmopolitan. In a stark, straightforward style, which is sparing with adjectives, the former president discusses the period from the time he was sworn in as chief executive by the light of a New England lamp to the end of Harding's term.

"My own participation in the campaign of 1924 was delayed by the death of my son, Calvin, which occurred on the seventh of July," Coolidge wrote. "He was a boy of much promise, proficient in his studies, with a scholarly mind, who had just turned sixteen."

"He had a remarkable insight into things. The day I had become president he had just started work in a tobacco field. When one of his fellow laborers said to him, 'If my father was president I would not work in a tobacco field,' Calvin replied, 'If my father were your father you would.'"

"After he was gone someone sent me a letter he had written about the same time to a young man who had congratulated him on being the first boy in the land. To this he replied that he had done nothing and so did not merit the title, which should go to 'some boy who had distinguished himself through his own actions.'"

"We do not know what might have happened to him under other circumstances, but if I had not been president he would not have raised a blister on his toe, which resulted in blood poisoning, playing tennis in the south grounds."

"When he went the power and glory of the presidency went with him."

"The ways of providence are often beyond our understanding."

Then Coolidge tells how his father lay dying in the Vermont homestead while the pressure of presidential duties made it impossible for him to go to his bedside. "It costs a lot to be president," he wrote.

Coolidge reveals that even when he was elected governor of Massachusetts for a second term in 1919 and was mentioned as a presidential possibility he still felt he was not qualified to fill the office of chief executive.

He goes on to describe the night of August 2, 1923, when "I was awakened by my father coming to the stairs calling my name. I noticed that his voice trembled."

INDIANA STANDARD OIL COMPANY OUSTS ROCKEFELLER'S FOE

Sinclair, Who Caused
Trouble, Offers Jobs
To Colonel

CHICAGO, March 8.—New enterprises were reported beckoning to Col. Robert W. Stewart today.

From his more intimate friends it was learned that the oil industry already had offered him at least two positions as good or better than the $125,000-a-year one he lost at Whiting.

It was considered doubtful, however, that Stewart would accept any new connections immediately but would rest for a while from the strenuous campaign against John D. Rockefeller, Jr., which ended yesterday when the big shareholders of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana voted to oust him from the board of directors.

Harry F. Sinclair, whose business dealings with "The Colonel" in the Continental Trading Company, Ltd., led to Rockefeller's demands that Stewart get out or be put out of Standard Oil, is reported to have made two attractive offers to the deposed executive.

One is said to be a high position in Sinclair's present organization. The other report is to the effect that Sinclair is planning an immense oil merger with the Phillips and Skelly companies and wants Stewart to head the new concern.

Probably never before in the history of big business has a high executive been subjected to such a humiliating experience as the one to which the unyielding Rockefeller subjected Stewart.

From the seclusion of his place in New York, John D. Jr., watched Colonel Stewart's controversy with the United States senate which sought to question him about his connection with the so-called Continental Trading Company scandal.

When it was all over and Stewart had been acquitted of perjury and contempt by a jury, Rockefeller made a public demand upon Stewart that he resign.

Although he and his family owned only 15 per cent of the stock in Stewart's company, Rockefeller saw it as his duty to oust Stewart as "morally unfit" to head a concern from which the Rockefellers were accepting dividends.

Then began the campaign for proxies. The campaign met with typical Rockefeller success, and although John D. Jr., himself remained out of the country during the entire fight, he won with a majority of 2,555,327 shares of stock.

The climax which was reached in the Whiting Memorial Center yesterday was not the financial battle of the century as it had been pictured. Instead it was an intensely human drama of his business. Stewart knew he was beaten before he ever started to the meeting. Before leaving his office in Chicago he had prepared and duplicated a statement expressing his regret at leaving the company.

The senate leaders hope to have the farm bill ready at the outset in order they may have something to do during the three weeks or more the house will spend on the tariff bill. If they do not have the tariff bill prepared, various other measures will be seeking prior position.

Mr. Hoover indicated in his proclamation he desired to have the extra session confined to farm relief and tariff revision. House leaders say they can see no other business gets through but senate leaders confess their free rules will permit a majority to pass any kind of legislation. A battle between the two houses may result if Mr. Hoover presses his point.

Leaders say they expect the special session to end before July 15.

NEWTON FALLS, O., March 8.—Jealousy was advanced today as the motive behind the slaying of Chauncey Bailey, 42, who was shot to death last night by his wife, Maude, who then killed herself. The Baileys were the parents of four children. Before he died Bailey told police his wife quarreled with him because he extended aid to a widow and her seven children. Bailey said he was aided with his wife for possession of the revolver before she shot him.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, March 8.—Pretty, bobbed-haired Ruth Timmons, 19, was back on the job as teacher of the White Oak School near here today, after facing removal on a series of charges, one of which was that she taught pupils to Charleston.

It wasn't the Charleston that she taught, and anyway, if it was, the dance was just one form of physical education, school board members decided after the hearing.

Most of the township turned out to hear the charges against the teacher. There were a great many witnesses, most of whom testified from hearsay, and whose testimony, consequently, was ruled out.

"Did you teach the Charleston to your pupils?" Miss Timmons was asked.

"No," she answered. "I don't even know how to do it myself. The children just picked it up. Why one little girl told me her mother had her dance before visitors at their home."

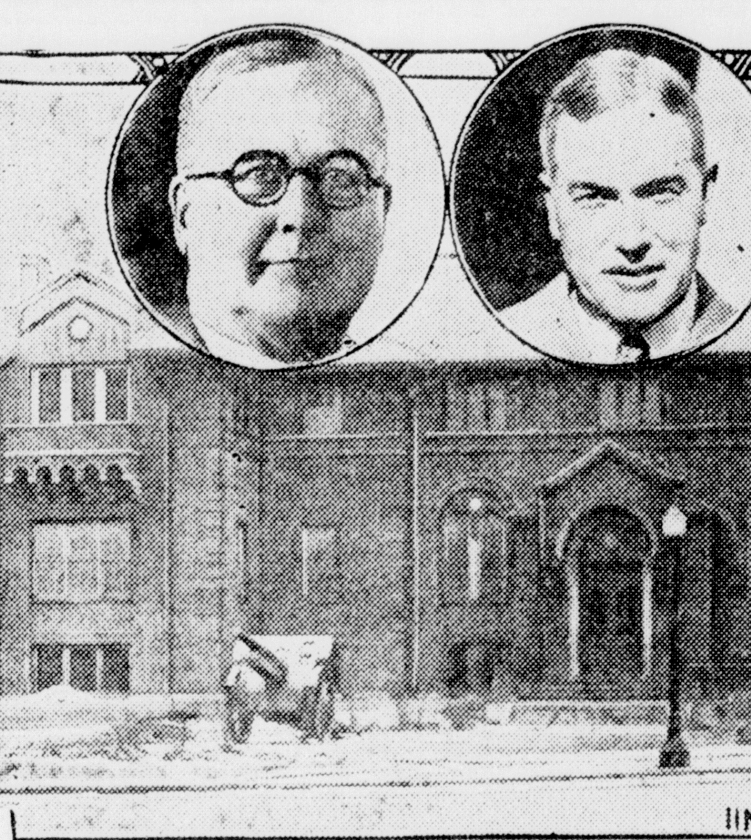

She did reveal that she had taught the children some folk dances she had learned as a part of a course in physical education at Muskingum College.

"Wouldn't the Charleston be a form of physical education?" George M. Pogue, county school superintendent asked.

"Why surely," the pretty young teacher answered. Other members of the board evidently thought so, for after five minutes deliberation they found the girl not guilty of the charges.

Other charges against her were: That she failed to maintain proper discipline in school; that she failed to start classes on time; and that she failed to instruct her pupils properly; and that she failed to keep proper oversight over them outside of school.

STEWART LOSES JOB IN PROXY FIGHT

OHIO LEGISLATURE TODAY
House of representatives holds Friday morning meeting, first of present legislative session. Senate is in adjournment until Monday evening.

Rowe bill, to require hunters to wear license numbers on their backs, up for passage in the house.

CLASSIFICATION IS APPROVED BY HOUSE AS TAX AMENDMENT

Bill To Require Hunters To Wear Tags Now Up

COLUMBUS, O., March 8.—The house of representatives convened today for the first Friday meeting of the present session, which started Jan. 7.

The senate adjourned late yesterday until Monday night.

Leaders of the house had planned to bring the Pence utility rate repealer up for a vote in the lower chamber today, but were compelled to change plans because of delay by the utilities committee in reporting the measure for action.

As a result the bill will not be voted upon until next Tuesday.

Only one bill of any particular general interest was on today's calendar.

It is the measure by Rep. H. E. C. Rowe, Holmes County, to require hunters to wear their license number tags on their backs while hunting.

The house has adopted the resolution by Rep. John A. Hadden, of Cleveland, proposing a constitutional amendment providing for limited classification of property for taxation purposes.

It also put down an insurgent movement designed to revive the "old age pension" bill, killed recently by the house insurance committee which voted to postpone indefinitely all action on the measure.

The Hadden resolution was adopted after prolonged debate with Rep. Ray C. Carpenter, Seneca County, leading the attack against it and Hadden the force for the proposal.

The proposal now goes to the senate and if approved there the classification amendment will be submitted to the voters at the November 1929 election for ratification or rejection.

COLUMBUS, O., March 8.—Pressure brought on administration leaders by members of the house committee on utilities has forced them to accede to amendments to the Carpenter senate bill to repeal the Pence law and establish new machinery for regulating public utility rates.

Amendments were demanded to protect the consumers from rate increases while the bill is pending and assuring that rates established by utilities and now being collected under bond would not be made permanent by the passage of the Carpenter bill.

Gov. Cooper agreed to an amendment drawn by Commerce Director E. D. Schorr, to the effect that in all pending proceedings the public utilities commission shall proceed to determine how much of the rates now being collected are excessive and unreasonable. The excess then shall be repaid as the commission shall order with interest at the rate of six per cent within the period of one year. Any refund not collected by the commission for any reason shall, under the amendment be paid into the county treasury of the county in which the subscriber resides.

AMENDMENTS TO REPEALER ON PENCE LAW ARE BEING FORCED

CHARLESTON TEACHER APPROVED BY BOARD

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, March 8.—Pretty, bobbed-haired Ruth Timmons, 19, was back on the job as teacher of the White Oak School near here today, after facing removal on a series of charges, one of which was that she taught pupils to Charleston.

XENIA FEELS EARLY MORNING TREMBOR; NO DAMAGE CAUSED

Shock Seems Worse At
Bellefontaine; Felt
In Dayton

COLUMBUS, O., March 8.—A slight earthquake rocked sections of Ohio and Indiana between 4 a. m. and 4:20 a. m. today, according to reports telephoned to the United Press here.

At Piqua, O., two distinct shocks were felt. Windows and dishes rattled and the earth trembled visibly.

Another report said the quake was felt at Dayton, and Bellefontaine, O., reported distinct tremors there.

The Bellefontaine shock lasted about thirty seconds and aroused citizens who telephoned newspaper offices demanding to know what had caused the shock.

The Piqua shocks were so severe that residents were aroused. Scores of calls swamped the office of the Piqua Daily Call.

Although no damage was reported at Bellefontaine, the shock apparently was more severe there than any place in the state.

One man, aroused by the tremors, said he thought his furnace had exploded.

Another resident said he was awakened and that the noise of the shock sounded as though a huge dog were running through the house.

A woman living in a brick house near Bellefontaine, said her home was shaken.

HAMILTON, O., March 8.—Earth tremors rumbled beneath Hamilton and Oxford at 4 a. m. today, shaking houses and rattling windows but causing no damage.

The tremors lasted only a few seconds but were of sufficient intensity to arouse residents. Many returned to their beds, however, believing the shocks resulted from an explosion.

The Oxford shock was the most severe.

CINCINNATI, O., March 8.—Scores of Cincinnatians were awakened early today when a mild earthquake shook the city.

Dr. Howard D. McIntyre who was aroused by the shock, estimated the tremor began at 4:12 a. m. and lasted only a few seconds. Houses were shaken slightly but no damage was reported.

SIDNEY, O., March 8.—Hundreds of persons in Sidney and vicinity were aroused early today when two distinct earthquakes shook the city.

Buildings rocked on their foundations and in some instances windows were shattered.

DAYTON, O., March 8.—A slight earthquake was felt here at 4 a. m. today, according to reports telephoned to the weather bureau. There was no official report of a shock being recorded however.

Xenians, in common with other residents of the Miami Valley, who were awake between 4 and 4:30 a. m. Friday, felt earth tremors which have been attributed to a mild earthquake.

Two distinct shocks were felt with a short interval in between. Houses rocked slightly but no damage was reported because the quake was not severe.

VATICAN AT PEACE WITH ROTARY

ROME, March 8.—The Vatican's fight against Rotary International can be considered as ended with all bans against lay Rotarians lifted, it was made known here today.

The clergy merely will receive a mild admonition to maintain the ecclesiastical dignity, it was understood in connection with the ending of recent attacks on the organization by the Vatican organ, Osservatore Romano.

The Holy See will not issue a communiqué on the question, but articles accepting President Saiton's defense of Rotary will be published in various Catholic semi-official organs, stating that Rotary is not interfering with the principles of the Catholic religion.

AUTHOR, PRODUCER DIES IN NEWARK, O.

NEWARK, March 8.—Elmer E. Vance, 68, author and producer of "The Limited Mail," a mechanical railroad play first presented thirty-five years ago, is dead at his home near here from pneumonia.

Vance's play—one of the most popular of its day—was set in a railroad station at Hemlock, near Athens. Vance was a B. and O. train dispatcher and conceived the plot while working for the railroad. The play made him wealthy but he suffered financial reverses in subsequent theatrical undertakings.

MOTHER, TWO CHILDREN ARE DEAD IN BLAZE

"Save The Children"
Cries Woman In
Dayton Fire

DAYTON, O., March 8.—The last earthly thought of Mrs. Rachael Young, 22, who burned to death with two of her four children here last night, was for the children.

"Save the children," the frantic mother screamed as her husband Fred returned home to find his house in flames and his wife and four children trapped.

Young, braving a wall of flames, dashed into a room and carried out Virginia, 6, and an infant son, Robert, but before he could return for the others the house was enveloped in flames.

The other children, William, 4, and James, 2, burned to death with their mother.

A kerosene explosion started the fire.

Young and the two rescued children were badly burned but will recover, physicians said today.

Young was returning from a visit with the neighbors when she saw smoke curling from the house. He rushed in and found his wife lying at the top of the staircase, her clothing burning.

Mrs. Young had tried to save the children.

Young and the rescued children were burned on their faces, hands and bodies.

Mrs. Young's mother resides in St. Marys, Ohio.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF THOMAS TAGGART FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Xenia relatives of the late Thomas Taggart, Indiana Democratic leader, were unable to attend the private funeral services for Mr. Taggart which were held at the Indianapolis home Friday afternoon.

Mrs. J. H. Littell, a first cousin of the deceased could not go as she was obliged to remain here with her aged mother, Mrs. Sarah Kingsbury, aunt of Mr. Taggart, who felt keenly the news of his death, and is in frail health.

R. S. Kingsbury, Mrs. Littell's brother, who is undergoing treatment at Battle Creek, Mich., was prevented because of his ill health from making the trip to Indianapolis for the rites. The family was however represented at the obsequies by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kingsbury of Indianapolis.

The funeral services Friday afternoon were conducted by the Rt. Rev. Joseph M. Francis, bishop of the Indianapolis diocese of the Episcopal Church. Burial took place in Crown Hill Cemetery, Indianapolis.

Great numbers of men and women in all walks of life passed his bier Thursday to pay final tribute to the former statesman.

BULL KILLS FARMER

WAPAKONETA, O., March 8.—An enraged bull killed Charles Wheeler, 55, prominent farmer and breeder of Guernsey cattle, at his home near here yesterday. Wheeler's body was found by his wife. Nearby the infuriated bull was pawing the earth. Wheeler was badly gored.

OHIOAN ASSUMES CABINET POSITION

Walter F. Brown, the new Postmaster-General in the cabinet of President Hoover, as he appeared at his desk the first day at his new post.

HOUSE MAY CONSIDER TARIFF AS SENATE WORKS ON FARM BILL

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The program for the extra session of congress beginning April 15 was being mapped out today by congressional leaders who have about agreed the house should go to work immediately on the tariff bill while the senate works on the farm bill.

Following issuance of President Hoover's proclamation yesterday, Republican leaders from both sides of the capitol talked over their scheme for speeding up the president's legislative program and also for squeezing out other matters clamoring for attention. They do not believe they can confine the session to the two matters the president desires, but they intend to hold the program down as much as possible.

A dozen sub-committees of the house ways and means committee now are at work writing new tariff schedules for various phases of bill. Their recommendations will be submitted to the full committee March 16 and the full committee will then start whipping the bill into shape.

No work has yet been done on the farm bill and ordinarily the congress would await Mr. Hoover's special message at the opening of the session in order to frame the bill along the lines he desires. The leaders are, however, generally informed concerning Mr. Hoover's views as set forth in his campaign speeches and the agriculture committee of the senate will have the cooperation of the agriculture department in framing the bill.

The senate leaders hope to have the farm bill ready at the outset in order they may have something to do during the three weeks or more the house will spend on the tariff bill. If they do not have the tariff bill prepared, various other measures will be seeking prior position.

Mr. Hoover indicated in his proclamation he desired to have the extra session confined to farm relief and tariff revision. House leaders say they can see no other business gets through but senate leaders confess their free rules will permit a majority to pass any kind of legislation. A battle between the two houses may result if Mr. Hoover presses his point.

Leaders say they expect the special session to end before July 15.

FOUR KILLED, MANY INJURED IN EXPLOSION

SCRIBNER, Nebr., March 8.—Four persons were killed, four probably fatally injured and seventeen others less seriously injured in an explosion of dynamite stored in the barn of Carl Hollander, county supervisor, here last night.

The dynamite was to have been used in dynamiting ice jams in the Elkhorn river near here. Fire broke out in the barn and caused the explosion.

The dead were members of the volunteer fire department which fought the blaze.

It was considered doubtful, however, that Stewart would accept any new connections immediately but would rest for a while from the strenuous campaign against John D. Rockefeller, Jr., which ended yesterday when the big shareholders of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana voted to oust him from the board of directors.

Harry F. Sinclair, whose business dealings with "The Colonel" in the Continental Trading Company, Ltd., led to Rockefeller's demands that Stewart get out or be put out of Standard Oil, is reported to have made two attractive offers to the deposed executive.

One is said to be a high position in Sinclair's present organization. The other report is to the effect that Sinclair is planning an immense oil merger with the Phillips and Skelly companies and wants Stewart to head the new concern.

Probably never before in the history of big business has a high executive been subjected to such a humiliating experience as the one to which the unyielding Rockefeller subjected Stewart.

From the seclusion of his place in New York, John D. Jr., watched Colonel Stewart's controversy with the United States senate which sought to question him about his connection with the so-called Continental Trading Company scandal.

When it was all over and Stewart had been acquitted of perjury and contempt by a jury, Rockefeller made a public demand upon Stewart that he resign.

Although he and his family owned only 15 per cent of the stock in Stewart's company, Rockefeller saw it as his duty to oust Stewart as "morally unfit" to head a concern from which the Rockefellers were accepting dividends.

Then began the campaign for proxies. The campaign met with typical Rockefeller success, and although John D. Jr., himself remained out of the country during the entire fight, he won with a majority of 2,555,327 shares of stock.

The climax which was reached in the Whiting Memorial Center yesterday was not the financial battle of the century as it had been pictured. Instead it was an intensely human drama of his business. Stewart knew he was beaten before he ever started to the meeting. Before leaving his office in Chicago he had prepared and duplicated a statement expressing his regret at leaving the company.

KILLS HUSBAND AND THEN ENDS HER LIFE

NEWTON FALLS, O., March 8.—Jealousy was advanced today as the motive behind the slaying of Chauncey Bailey, 42, who was shot to death last night by his wife, Maude, who then killed herself.

The Baileys were the parents of four children. Before he died Bailey told police his wife quarreled with him because he extended aid to a widow and her seven children. Bailey said he was tired with his wife for possession of the revolver before she shot him.

CHARLESTON TEACHER APPROVED BY BOARD

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, March 8.—Pretty, bobbed-haired Ruth Timmons, 19, was back on the job as teacher of the White Oak School near here today, after facing removal on a series of charges, one of which was that she taught pupils to Charleston.

It wasn't the Charleston that she taught, and anyway, if it was, the dance was just one form of physical education, school board members decided after the hearing.

Most of the township turned out to hear the charges against the teacher. There were a great many witnesses, most of whom testified from hearsay, and whose testimony, consequently, was ruled out.

"Did you teach the Charleston to your pupils?" Miss Timmons was asked.

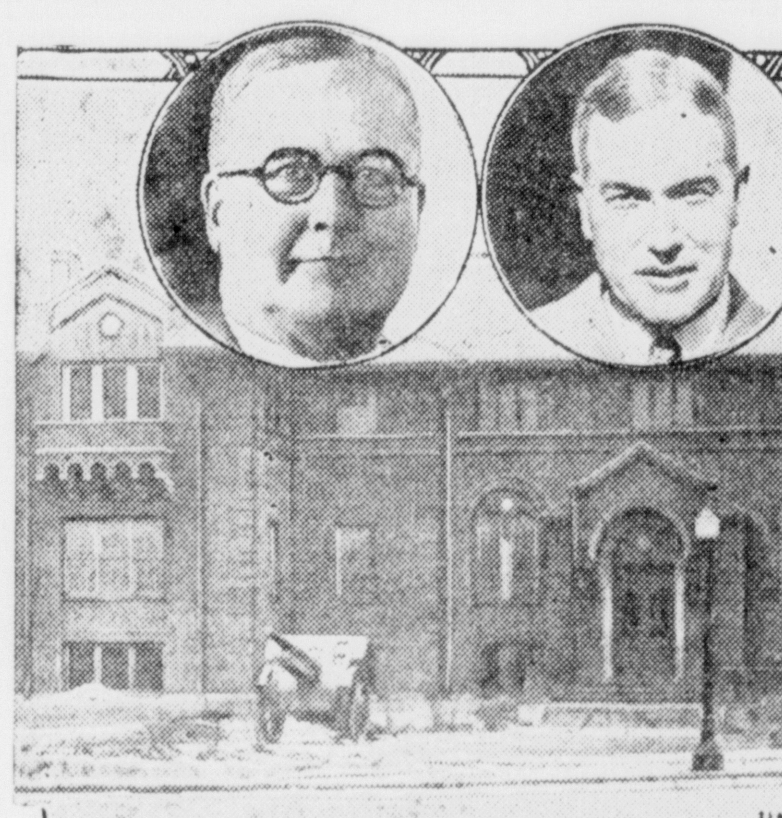

"No," she answered. "I don't even know how to do it myself. The children just picked it up."

Why one little girl told her mother had her dance before visitors at their home.

She did reveal that she had taught the children some folk dances she had learned as a part of a course in physical education at Muskingum College.

STEWART LOSES JOB IN PROXY FIGHT

OHIO LEGISLATURE TODAY
House of representatives holds Friday morning meeting, first of present legislative session. Senate is in adjournment until Monday evening.

Rowe bill, to require hunters to wear license numbers on their backs, up for passage in the house.

CLASSIFICATION IS APPROVED BY HOUSE AS TAX AMENDMENT

Bill To Require Hunters To Wear Tags Now Up

COLUMBUS, O., March 8.—The house of representatives convened today for the first Friday meeting of the present session, which started Jan. 7.

The senate adjourned late yesterday until Monday night. Leaders of the house had planned to bring the Pence utility rate law repealer up for a vote in the lower chamber today, but were compelled to change plans because of delay by the utilities committee in reporting the measure for action.

As a result the bill will not be voted upon until next Tuesday.

Only one bill of any particular general interest was on today's calendar.

It is the measure by Rep. H. E. C. Rowe, Holmes County, to require hunters to wear their license number tags on their backs while hunting.

The house has adopted the resolution by Rep. John A. Hadden, of Cleveland, proposing a constitutional amendment providing for limited classification of property for taxation purposes.

It also put down an insurgent movement designed to revive the "old age pension" bill, killed recently by the house insurance committee which voted to postpone indefinitely all action on the measure.

The Hadden resolution was adopted after prolonged debate, with Rep. Ray C. Carpenter, Seneca County, leading the attack against it and Hadden the force for the proposal.

The proposal now goes to the senate and if approved there the classification amendment will be submitted to the voters at the November 1929 election for ratification or rejection.

AMENDMENTS TO REPEALER ON PENCE LAW ARE BEING FORCED

COLUMBUS, O., March 8.—Pressure brought on administration leaders by members of the house committee on utilities has forced them to accede to amendments to the Carpenter bill.

The state introduced as exhibits cancelled checks and notes and other records of the bank, bringing the total of the state's exhibits to 108.

The state is charging that Stein formed a syndicate to purchase from the Cities Mortgage Co., its best asset, stock in the Cleveland Joint Stock Land Bank, with the understanding that Quarigian, Patterson and Smith should use part of the money to pay off personal notes at his bank totaling $237,000.

Amendments were demanded to protect the consumers from rate increases while the bill is pending and assuring that rates established by utilities and now being collected under bond would not be made permanent by the passage of the Carpenter bill.

Gov. Cooper agreed to an amendment drawn by Commerce Director El D. Schoor, to the effect that in all pending proceedings the public utilities commission shall proceed to determine how much of the rates now being collected are excessive and unreasonable. The excess then shall be repaid as the commission shall order with interest at the rate of six per cent within the period of one year. Any refund not collected by the consumers for any reason shall, under the amendment be paid into the county treasury of the county in which the subscriber resides.

DEFUNCT MORTGAGE COMPANY OFFICIALS TRIAL CONTINUING

Cancelled Checks And Notes Shown In Columbus Case

COLUMBUS, O., March 8.—The state today hoped to finish introduction of evidence in the $285,000 embezzlement case against three former officers of the defunct Cities Mortgage Company and a former Columbus banker.

Today was the last day of the second week of the trial of the accused, A. E. Quarigian, Ray H. Patterson and Harvey C. Smith, former mortgage company officers, and Frank L. Stein, former president of the Ohio National Bank.

Stein is charged with aiding and abetting the other three defendants in the embezzlement of $285,000 of the mortgage company's funds on December 9, 1924.

Indications are the trial will occupy nearly all of the third week. At least three of the four defendants will take the witness stand in their own behalf, defense attorneys have indicated.

Smith may not take the stand because of his physical condition. There may be other witnesses.

Frank T. Kronenbitter, loan teller at the Ohio National Bank, who occupied the witness stand most of Thursday, resumed his testimony today.

From records of the bank Kronenbitter, questioned by Special Prosecutor Turner, revealed an interchange of money and securities among the accounts of the four men on trial, the mortgage company and the A. E. Quarigian Co., shortly before and after and on December 9, the date of the alleged embezzlement.

The state introduced as exhibits cancelled checks and notes and other records of the bank, bringing the total of the state's exhibits to 108.

The state is charging that Stein formed a syndicate to purchase from the Cities Mortgage Co., its best asset, stock in the Cleveland Joint Stock Land Bank, with the understanding that Quarigian, Patterson and Smith should use part of the money to pay off personal notes at his bank totaling $237,000.

XENIA FEELS EARLY MORNING TREMBLOR; NO DAMAGE CAUSED

Shock Seems Worse At
Bellefontaine; Felt
In Dayton

COLUMBUS, O., March 8.—A slight earthquake rocked sections of Ohio and Indiana between 4 a. m. and 4:20 a. m. today, according to reports telephoned to the United Press here.

At Piqua, O., two distinct shocks were felt. Windows and dishes rattled and the earth trembled visibly.

Another report said the quake was felt at Dayton, and Bellefontaine, O., reported distinct tremors there.

The Bellefontaine shock lasted about thirty seconds and aroused citizens who telephoned newspaper offices demanding to know what had caused the shock.

The Piqua shocks were so severe that residents were aroused. Scores of calls swamped the office of the Piqua Daily Call.

Although no damage was reported at Bellefontaine, the shock apparently was more severe there than anywhere in the state.

One man, aroused by the tremors, said he thought his furnace had exploded.

Another resident said he was awakened and that the noise of the shock sounded as though a huge dog were running through the house.

A woman living in a brick house near Bellefontaine, said her home was shaken.

HAMILTON, O., March 8.—Earth tremors rumbled beneath Hamilton and Oxford at 4 a. m. today, shaking houses and rattling windows but causing no damage.

The tremors lasted only a few seconds but were of sufficient intensity to arouse residents. Many returned to their beds, however, believing the shocks resulted from an explosion.

The Oxford shock was the most severe.

CINCINNATI, O., March 8.—Scores of Cincinnati residents were awakened early today when a mild earthquake shook the city.

Dr. Howard D. McIntyre, who was aroused by the shock, estimated the tremor began at 4:12 a. m. and lasted only a few seconds.

Houses were shaken slightly but no damage was reported.

SIDNEY, O., March 8.—Hundreds of persons in Sidney and vicinity were aroused early today when two distinct earthquakes shook the city.

Buildings rocked on their foundations and in some instances windows were shattered.

DAYTON, O., March 8.—A slight earthquake was felt here at 4 a. m. today, according to reports telephoned to the weather bureau. There was no official report of a shock being recorded however.

Xenians, in common with other residents of the Miami Valley, who were awakened between 4 and 4:30 a. m. Friday, felt earth tremors which have been attributed to a mild earthquake.

Two distinct shocks were felt with a short interval in between. Houses rocked slightly but no damage was reported because the quake was not severe.

VATICAN AT PEACE WITH ROTARY

ROME, March 8.—The Vatican's fight against Rotary International can be considered as ended with its ban against lay Rotarians lifted. It was made known here today.

The clergy merely will receive a mild admonition to maintain the ecclesiastical dignity, it was understood in connection with the ending of recent attacks on the organization by the Vatican organ, Observatore Romano.

The Holy See will not issue a communique on the question, but articles accepting President Sulton's defense of Rotary will be published in various Catholic semi-official organs, stating that Rotary is not interfering with the principles of the Catholic religion.

AUTHOR, PRODUCER DIES IN NEWARK, O.

NEWARK, March 8.—Elmer E. Vance, 68, author and producer of "The Limited Mail," a mechanical railroad play first presented thirty-five years ago, is dead at his home near here from pneumonia.

Vance's play—one of the most popular of its day—was set in a railroad station at Hemlock, near Athens. Vance was a B. and O. train dispatcher and conceived the plot while working for the railroad. The play made him wealthy but he suffered financial reverses in subsequent theatrical undertakings.

MOTHER, TWO CHILDREN ARE DEAD IN BLAZE

"Save The Children" Cries Woman In Dayton Fire

DAYTON, O., March 8.—The last earthly thought of Mrs. Rachael Young, 22, who burned to death with two of her four children here last night, was for the children.

"Save the children," the frantic mother screamed as her husband, Fred, returned home to find his house in flames and his wife and four children trapped.

Young, braving a wall of flames, dashed into a room and carried out Virginia, 6, and an infant son, Robert, but before he could return for the others the house was enveloped in flames.

The other children, William, 4, and James, 2, burned to death with their mother.

A kerosene explosion started the fire.

Young and the two rescued children were badly burned but will recover, physicians said today.

Young was returning from a visit with the neighbors when she saw smoke curling from the house. He rushed in and found his wife lying at the top of the staircase, her clothing burning.

Mrs. Young had tried to save the children.

Young and the rescued children were burned on their faces, hands and bodies.

Mrs. Young's mother resides in St. Marys, Ohio.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF THOMAS TAGGART FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Xenia relatives of the late Thomas Taggart, Indiana Democratic leader, were unable to attend the private funeral services for Mr. Taggart which were held at the Indianapolis home Friday afternoon.

Mrs. J. H. Littell, a first cousin of the deceased could not go as she was obliged to remain here with her aged mother, Mrs. Sarah Kingsbury, aunt of Mr. Taggart, who felt keenly the news of his death, and is in frail health.

R. S. Kingsbury, Mrs. Littell's brother, who is undergoing treatment at Battle Creek, Mich., was prevented because of his ill health, from making the trip to Indianapolis for the rites.

The family was however represented at the obsequies by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kingsbury of Indianapolis.

The funeral services Friday afternoon were conducted by the Rt. Rev. Joseph M. Francis, bishop of the Indianapolis diocese of the Episcopal Church. Burial took place in Crown Hill Cemetery, Indianapolis.

Great numbers of men and women in all walks of life passed his bier Thursday to pay final tribute to the former statesman.

BULL KILLS FARMER

WAPAKONETA, O., March 8.—An enraged bull killed Charles Wheeler, 55, prominent farmer and leader of the Guernsey cattle, at his home near here yesterday. Wheeler's body was found by his wife. Nearby the infuriated bull was pawing the earth. Wheeler was badly gored.

HOUSE MAY CONSIDER TARIFF AS SENATE WORKS ON FARM BILL

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The program for the extra session of congress beginning April 15 was being mapped out today by congressional leaders who have about agreed the house should go to work immediately on the tariff bill while the senate works on the farm bill.

Following issuance of President Hoover's proclamation yesterday, Republican leaders from both sides of the capitol talked over their scheme for speeding up the president's legislative program and also for squeezing out other matters clamoring for attention. They do not believe they can confine the session to the two matters the president desires, but they intend to hold the program down as much as possible.

A dozen subcommittees of the house ways and means committee now are at work writing new tariff schedules for various phases of bill. Their recommendations will be submitted to the full committee March 15 and the full committee will then start whipping the bill into shape.

No work has yet been done on the farm bill and ordinarily the congress would await Mr. Hoover's special message at the opening of the session in order to frame the bill along the lines he desires. The leaders are, however, generally informed concerning Mr. Hoover's views as set forth in his campaign speeches and the agriculture department in framing the bill.

The senate leaders hope to have the farm bill ready at the outset in order they may have something to do during the three weeks or more the house will spend on the tariff bill. If they do not have the farm bill prepared, various other measures will be seeking prior position.

Mr. Hoover indicated in his proclamation he desired to have the extra session confined to farm relief and tariff revision. House leaders say they can see no other business gets through but senate leaders confess their free rule will permit a majority to pass any kind of legislation. A battle between the two houses may result if Mr. Hoover presses his point.

Leaders say they expect the special session to end before July 15.

FOUR KILLED, MANY INJURED IN EXPLOSION

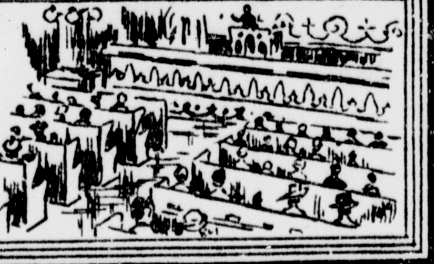

SCRIBNER, Nebr., March 8.—Four persons were killed, four probably fatally injured and seventeen others less seriously injured in an explosion of dynamite stored in the barn of Carl Hollander, county supervisor, here last night.

The dynamite was to have been used in dynamiting ice jams in the Elkhorn river near here. Fire broke out in the barn and caused the explosion.

The dead were members of the volunteer fire department which fought the blaze.

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

This lesson is important for our physical, mental and spiritual life. It concerns one seventh of our time. It has to do with ten whole years, if we live to be seventy. The wise use of these ten years is enough to decide a life's success. The unwise use of this time suffices to bring failure.

V. 8. "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy." We cannot keep the Sabbath day holy unless we engage our thought for it. "Holy" means consecrated, set apart which means that the day is not a day when one may be slothful, frivolous or selfish, but when one is to be spiritual.

V. 9. "Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work." It is as essential for one to work six days as it is to rest and worship one day. He who never works is unfitted for worship and he who never pauses to worship is rendered incapable for work.

V. 10. "But the Sabbath day is a sabbath unto Jehovah." The Sabbath was for God as well as man; it is the day when men and God get together in a special manner called worship, the recognized meeting place being the church.

V. 1. "At that season Jesus went on the Sabbath day through the grain-fields; and the disciples were hungry and began to pluck ears and to eat." Here was a human need—hunger—that called for supply—the supply at hand—growing grain; here may be deduced a Christian principle—the lower needs must give way to the higher necessities.

When human life is to be preserved, ceremony must get out of the way; works of necessity and mercy have a place on the Sabbath, but care must be taken to make the proper discrimination and not make an excuse for unnecessary work.

V. 2. "But the Pharisees, when they saw it said unto him, behold thy disciples do that which it is not lawful to do upon the Sabbath." The spirit of criticism based upon tradition customs, man made rules, hinders the progress of the kingdom and must be brushed aside.

V. 3. "But he said unto them, have ye not read what David did when he was hungry, and they that were with him; how he entered into the house of God and ate the shew bread which was not lawful for him to eat." If David on the ground of hunger could override the law, that on the Sabbath day, the priests in the temple profane the Sabbath and are guiltless? The law required them to do labor—change the bread, build the fire and do all the work of the sanctuary.

V. 4. "For the Son of man is lord of the Sabbath." It is the Lord's day in a special manner when his reign in the world received special attention. Whether the Lord shall reign throughout the world will be settled when man settles the question rightly as to the Sabbath program planned by God.

V. 5. "Or have ye not read in the law, that on the Sabbath day, the priests in the temple profane the Sabbath and are guiltless?" The law required them to do labor—change the bread, build the fire and do all the work of the sanctuary.

5. What principle found in this lesson should be our guide as to what work may be done on Sunday?

6. What are the obstacles hindering church attendance and how remove them?

Clericus says, "Man is the end, the Sabbath is the means; man is greater than the day and its observance must be subordinated to his needs; a man would rest from the worry and cares of life; he needs worship, forgiveness, fellowship and eternal life."

LESSON PRAYER
"We praise thee, we would worship thee; we thank thee for a plan that makes worship possible. Help us to use the Sabbath day rightly that the deepest needs of our soul may be supplied."

A MOTHER'S ENCOURAGEMENT
"Thomas is always at the foot of his class; it almost seems a waste of time for his parents to keep him in school," said his teacher to a friend.

Thomas overheard that remark, which hurt his feelings greatly; when he told his mother what his teacher had said, she was very much annoyed and decided to look after her son's education herself, as she had once been a teacher. She felt Thomas had it in him to make good if only given proper encouragement.

Many years later Thomas Edison wrote of this incident and eulogized his mother in these words: "My mother was the most enthusiastic champion that a boy ever had and I determined right then that I would be worthy of her and show that her confidence was not misplaced. My mother was the making of me. She was so true, so sure of me and I felt I had some one to live for, some one that I must not disappoint."

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

This lesson is important for our physical, mental and spiritual life. It concerns one seventh of our time. It has to do with ten whole years, if we live to be seventy. The wise use of these ten years is enough to decide a life's success. The unwise use of this time suffices to bring failure.

V. 8. "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy." We cannot keep the Sabbath day holy unless we engage our thought for it. "Holy" means consecrated, set apart which means that the day is not a day when one may be slothful, frivolous or selfish, but when one is to be spiritual.

V. 9. "Six days shall thou labor and do all thy work." It is as essential for one to work six days as it is to rest and worship one day. He who never works is unfitted for worship and he who never pauses to worship is rendered incapable for work.

V. 10. "But the Sabbath day is a Sabbath unto Jehovah." The Sabbath was for God as well as man; it is the day when men and God get together in a special manner called worship, the recognized meeting place being the church.

V. 1. "At that season Jesus went on the Sabbath day through the grain-fields; and the disciples were hungry and began to pluck ears and to eat." Here was a human need—hunger—that called for supply. The supply at hand—growing grain; here may be deduced a Christian principle—the lower needs must give way to the higher necessities. When human life is to be preserved, ceremony must get out of the way; works of necessity and mercy have a place on the Sabbath, but care must be taken to make the proper discrimination and not make an excuse for unnecessary work.

V. 2. "But the Pharisees, when they saw it, said unto him, behold thy disciples do that which it is not lawful to do upon the Sabbath." The spirit of criticism based upon tradition, customs, man made rules retards the progress of the kingdom and must be brushed aside.

Vs. 3, 4—"But he said unto them, have ye not read what David did, when he was hungry, and they that were with him; how he entered into the house of God and ate the shew bread which was not lawful for him to eat?" If David on the ground of hunger could override the law of the tabernacle, could not his disciples on the same ground pluck and eat grain on the Sabbath?

V. 5. "Or have ye not read in the law, that on the Sabbath day, the priests in the temple profane the Sabbath and are guiltless?" The law required them to do labor—change the bread, build the fire and do all the work of the sanctuary.

Vs. 6, 7—"For the Son of man is lord of the Sabbath." It is the Lord's day in a special manner when his reign in the world receives special attention. Whether the Lord shall reign throughout the world will be settled when man settles the question rightly as to the Sabbath program planned by God.

5. What principle found in this lesson should be our guide as to what work may be done on Sunday?

6. What are the obstacles hindering church attendance and how remove them?

Clericus says, "Man is the end, the Sabbath is the means; man is greater than the day and his observance must be subordinated to his needs; a man would rest from the worry and cares of life; he needs worship, forgiveness, fellowship and eternal life."

LESSON PRAYER

"We praise thee, we would worship thee; we thank thee for a plan that makes worship possible. Help us to use the Sabbath day rightly that the deepest needs of our soul may be supplied."

BOOK REVIEW

"Preaching Values in the New Testament" by Luccock, The Abingdon Press, presents fresh insights on one hundred and fifty texts as found in new translations.

"Awakening" by Stanley High, The Abingdon Press, is a result of Mr. High's study of missions in the leading countries, in which he presents changes needed in missionary policy.

Church Forum

SUGGESTED METHODS OF GIVING MISSIONARY INSTRUCTION.

Select the theme of missions for the opening service of the school, choosing the Scripture lesson and the hymns related to missions, with a few minutes of missionary news, the prayer being missionary in thought and spirit; let the Sunday School have a missionary service in place of the morning preaching service; during the opening or closing services, hear letters of missionaries, have missionary map table, use a stereopticon giving missionary views, use missionary curios as object lessons, present diagrams of missionary facts, a short book review of an up-to-date missionary book that can be loaned missionary recitations and missionary stories may be used. Graduated missionary lessons can be arranged by a good missionary program committee, thus adapting the lesson material to each class.

2. HOW BEST RELATE MISSIONARY INSTRUCTION TO THE EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM OF THE CHURCH?

Let there be a committee on correlation of missionary work; plan that the same missionary subject be considered at the same time by all the departments of the church; that study missions; let the social and business meetings of the organized classes consider themes related to the missionary program of all the organizations for that time. The school might give an entertainment at the end of the period of study, such as a missionary pageant or a missionary concert.

Vs. 2, 3—"For the Son of man is lord of the Sabbath." It is the Lord's day in a special manner when his reign in the world receives special attention. Whether the Lord shall reign throughout the world will be settled when man settles the question rightly as to the Sabbath program planned by God.

World Religious News

Howard Williams son of the founder of the Y. M. C. A. and a prominent supporter of the movement died recently at his home in Kent, England. He represented his father, Sir George Williams, at the jubilee of the American branch of the organization in 1901.

By action of the high council of the Salvation Army, General Bramwell Booth has been relieved of his position as commander-in-chief of the organization in 1901.

All the presidents of the United States except one have had church affiliations. Eight of them were Episcopalians, seven were Presbyterians, four were Methodists, four were Unitarians, Presidents Van Buren and Roosevelt were connected with the Reformed Dutch churchmen. President Harding was a Baptist. President Garfield a Disciple of Christ and President Coolidge a Congregationalist. President-elect Hoover allied the Friends to this list of religious affiliations.

The Methodist Church in its work for the negro sponsors a correlated and unified enterprise embracing seven hundred schools and colleges, the alumni of which number over 15,000. In this group of schools, three are professional, nine colleges, three junior colleges, and two secondary schools. About a third of the negro teachers ministering to the needs of 5,000,000 negro children have been trained in these institutions.

Home Education

A MOTHER'S ENCOURAGEMENT

"Thomas is always at the foot of his class; it almost seems a waste of time for his parents to keep him in school" said his teacher to a friend.

Thomas overheard that remark, which hurt his feelings greatly; when he told his mother what his teacher had said, she was very much annoyed and decided to look after her son's education herself, as she had once been a teacher. She felt Thomas had it in him to make good if only given proper encouragement.

Many years later Thomas Edison wrote of this incident and eulogized his mother in these words: "My mother was the most enthusiastic champion that a boy ever had and I determined right then that I would be worthy of her and show that her confidence was not misplaced. My mother was the making of me. She was so true, so sure of me and I felt I had some one to live for, some one that I must not disappoint."

The Better Way

THE CHRISTIAN CITIZEN

Because he is a citizen of the Kingdom of heaven, he recognizes the duties and obligations of citizenship in this world; because he believes that God is his father, he believes that he is his brother's keeper; because he seeks the Kingdom of Christ first, he makes a great contribution to material prosperity; because he tries to render to God the things that are God's, he endeavors to render fully to Caesar the things that are Caesar's; because the symbol of his faith is the cross, he is ready to sacrifice himself in service; because he believes in eternity, he lives today in the light of the past and with a view to the future, and so endeavors to discharge his debt to generations to come; because God is his sovereign, he serves not as an opportunist appealing to the passing fancies of men, but seeks to know and to obey the laws of right and truth; because Jesus Christ is his Saviour, he deals with weakness and failure in others as a sympathetic helper in redemption and reconstruction; because he realizes the destructive influence of all wrong, he is the uncompromising foe of every evil; and because Christianity is both a message to be believed and a life to be lived, he puts his principals into practice and his ideals into daily contact.—Park Hays Miller.

KONJOLA BRINGS GLAD END TO 10 YEARS OF PAIN

ment; I feel that it is the least I can do to pay the debt of gratitude I owe to this marvelous medicine. I was weak and rundown, my general health was shattered as the result of infection, liver trouble and nervousness. I endured these painful and health destroying ailments for ten years, and not a medicine, not a treatment did me the least bit of good.

"Then came the most fortunate day of my life, when a friend, knowing of my condition, urged me to give Konjola a trial. Frankly, I had little faith, but I knew I must find relief somewhere, so I started taking Konjola, and almost at once I began to feel the effects of this magic compound. The poisons were swept from my system, and I could feel my general health improving. In three weeks a transformation had come over me. I could eat anything I liked, my complexion was clear, and I began to take on weight and strength. It is easy for me to understand why Konjola is known as the medicine with more than a million friends."

Konjola is different from any other known remedy in this section. It contains 22 juices extracted from natural plants, which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings about a relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time, many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health thru this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product, until now, Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine thru this section. It is sold in this vicinity. Konjola is sold in Xenia at the Gallaher Drug Store, and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section.

MRS. RUTH HOUSE

"ment; I feel that it is the least I can do to pay the debt of gratitude I owe to this marvelous medicine. I was weak and rundown, my general health was shattered as the result of indigestion, liver trouble and nervousness. I endured these painful and health destroying ailments for ten years, and not a medicine, not a treatment did me the least bit of good."

"Then came the most fortunate day of my life, when a friend, knowing of my condition, urged me to give Konjola a trial. Frankly, I had little faith, but I knew I must find relief somehow, so I started taking Konjola, and almost at once I began to feel the effects of this magic compound. The poisons were swept from my system, and I could feel my general health improving. In three weeks a transformation had come over me. I could eat anything I liked, my complexion was clear, and I began to take on weight and strength. It is easy for me to understand why Konjola is known as the medicine with more than a million friends."

Konjola is different from any other known remedy in this section. It contains 22 juices extracted from natural plants, which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time, many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health thru this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product, until now Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity. Konjola is sold in Xenia at the Gallaher Drug Store, and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE SPIRITUAL MAGNET—The Lord hath appeared of old unto me, saying, Yea, I have loved thee with an everlasting love: therefore with loving-kindness have I drawn thee.—Jeremiah 31:3.

REASON TO SMILE; TIME TO WHITTLE

President Coolidge seemed to enjoy his last days in Washington. If he has any regrets other than those which arise naturally upon leaving old friends and severing old associations, he is hiding them successfully. Reports say that he is in an unusually cheerful mood. And there is reason for this happiness and high spirits.

Throughout five and one-half years Mr. Coolidge has handled the most difficult job in the world with the highest measure of success, and with a minimum of friction and lost motion. His achievements have won for him the applause of the world and the hearty respect of everybody, even of his political foes, who also have acquired a hearty appreciation of his fighting powers. He has said little and has done much. And as he quits the helm and remarks to himself "and that's that," and sits down to whittle for a while, the country finds itself in a flood tide of unexampled prosperity largely because of the wisdom and efficiency of his administration.

Calvin Coolidge goes into voluntary retirement more popular with the nation and wielding more influence and possessing more potential political strength than any other president within the memory of living man, with the possible exception of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt. He also leaves office showing less wear and tear from the strain of the executive task than any other recent outgoing president has shown. All this is largely because he has stuck rather strictly to his job, refusing to be distracted by extraneous matters; has delivered the goods, has refused to worry, and has kept his own counsel.

And that brings up the interesting circumstance that even to this day the country does not know just why Mr. Coolidge declined to run for a second elective term—so close-mouthed can he be—beyond the fact that he said he had had enough, and didn't want any more of the presidency. A good many people have assumed that he quit because of the so-called "third term" issue, but the President never has said or done anything to give substance to the theory. He leaves the White House quite free as far as that matter is concerned; and so his position is totally different from the position of Colonel Roosevelt, who said he looked upon his first elective term as his second term in office, and was retiring on that account. The world knows that the colonel afterward repented of his words and recanted aggressively, though unsuccessfully. Mr. Coolidge could enter a presidential race again without recanting and without being inconsistent; but it will be a great surprise if he ever does.

ABOLISHING POVERTY

The rapid introduction of labor and time saving machinery may cause temporary distress in industry by creating unemployment, but it will eventually bring about a more even distribution of money and leisure, in the opinion of Secretary of Labor James J. Davis.

The poor are not getting poorer, they are getting richer, Mr. Davis is quoted in the current issue of The Golden Book magazine. Moreover, for the first time in human history there is reason for thinking that involuntary poverty is a thing that can be conquered—not by agitators, much less by politicians. It is going to be conquered by the application of labor saving machinery to industry.

Your BROADWAY And Mine

NEW YORK — Expressions probably have changed on the small-time. When we knew it away back in the early '20s the retort to the query: "What became of the girl he went with on the Pan Time?" was "Oh, you know. He loved her, but the season closed." When you were told and you were asked: "Where do you go next week?" you replied: "I'm layin' off," and you were trumpeted with: "Great! I'm on the same bill with you."

If the stage crew disturbed you by making noise while you were doing your act you always chirped, "Set 'em up in the other alley!" and when you introduced your wife to a friend, you were considered clever. If you said: "Meet the wife, and don't laugh," or "Meet the wife, but not too often."

I suppose that you will be surprised to hear from me after so long a time, but I have been out here in Chicago, where even the chorus boys carry pearl-handled blackjacks. I have been working the picture houses out here, and, unaccounted as I am to Public theaters, I have been doing time. My grandmother is also doing good out here—she is making quite a lot of money exhibiting grandpa, as he is the only one out here ever to die a natural death. This sure is a hot town. I have only been out here about seven months, and last night I went out to get in my car after the last show, and, as usual, one of the spare tires was missing. I immediately went out front and told the manager about the theft, and when I left his office I couldn't find my watch.

"We are still in the experimental stage of Christianity. We have been trying for only 2,000 years. Many of us, individually and nationally, have made a mess of it, but that is no reason why we should not start again."

There is something to think about in these words of the premier of England, Stanley Baldwin. One is reminded of the statement of another able Englishman, Gilbert Chesterton. Broadcasting the inaugural ceremonies in Washington puts radio to a splendid use. The cold indifference of the American people to public affairs is changing to warm interest. There are two outstanding reasons. First, the improved news service facilities of modern newspapers, with the speed of transmission of both news and photographs, is doing wonders in keeping more and more people informed of the doings of their democracy. Second, the radio is being graduated out of the entertaining novelty class into a great educational institution. A third cause of the lessened indifference is the use by the motion picture houses of better and better news reels.

DEAD ENOUGH

Now a lizard, believed to have been imprisoned for centuries, is found in a crevice in the rocks. The story is even better than that of the dead sealed for 31 years in a corner stone. The lizard shows signs of life, as did the toad. In an English musical review, shown in New York one of the principals says: "My uncle sits in the House of Lords." "But," says the other, "your uncle is dead." "I know it, but they let him sit there."

Plenty more to be found sitting around just like that. They are dead but have not been officially notified. We are just about as much alive as we determine to be. One has to work at being alive. It is perhaps more comfortable not to be alive—certainly, on occasions. A brilliant preacher, Dr. George Laughton, preached a sermon on this topic: "How to be Happy Though Alive." It may not be easy, but it is worth trying.

CHINA'S NATIONALIST CAUSE DECLARED ESTABLISHED BY SIMELEY D. BUTLER Brigadier General, U. S. Marine Corps. (Simeley Darlington Butler was born at West Chester, Pa., July 20, 1881. Appointed to the U. S. Marine Corps in 1899, and brigadier general in 1921. Butler was given leave of absence in 1924 and 1925 to act as safety director of the city of Philadelphia. He has been in command of the marine corps in China since the Nationalist revolution.)

Nationalist means of the people, by the people and for the people. The Chinese at first protested vigorously the presence of foreign military forces on their territory, but the attitude toward the United States has changed entirely. The feeling toward us is "on top."

When we left China a month ago, the Nationalist government presented me with a large silver loving cup and recently sent to the corps a silver plaque six feet tall.

I believe China is now autonomous, and is now a government representative of all the people. It is, however, of a military character. Soldiers have been "outcasts" in China, but now they are coming into their own, and it may be 100 years before conditions are entirely rectified. The principles of the Nationalist government will live on. The present regime may fall and be replaced by others. China may even have a dictatorship for a period. But the ideal of representative government is firmly implanted there.

You must remember things in China move slowly. The Chinese think in terms of centuries, while we measure political time by administrations. One revolution in China lasted 300 years.

If the Chinese achieve peaceful representative government within 100 years they will feel they have done well. Everything runs in cycles. For a while one class of men dominates governments, and then another.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

There are faces and faces. Some are oval, and some are round. Some are classically correct as to contour and features. Others, and these are in a far greater majority, have turned up noses or stubby chins. "Well, but of course," I say, "there are in this case, variations of beauty from the distinctive features of the classical era to the piquant loveliness of the modern woman—a charm that defies all traditions and is, nevertheless, quite fascinating."

Beauty, you know, refuses to be limited to a measuring rule. The poor little Cinderella who haunted the gallery of the museum with her tape measure and broke her heart over the discrepancy of her own proportions and the generous inches of the Aphrodite, had much to learn. Don't sigh for the unattainable. All the wishing in the world won't add the suspicion of an inch to the length of your chin. On the other hand, a little touch of rouge right at the tip of the chin will add an effect of that extra length—and after all the effect is all one wants—isn't it?

There are "tricks" of make-up that you really ought to know. As a matter of fact, you haven't given your beauty a fair chance until you learn to apply them. I suppose there are thousands of women who long for the oval face when they have the cherubic roundness of the circular contour. And of those thousands, probably not more than a baker's dozen know that to rouge high on the cheek bones, beneath the eyes and close to the nose, is one very simple way of attaining that oval effect.

On the other hand, the long face can be "camouflaged" when rouge is applied low on the cheeks and covering a large surface and spread out well toward the ears.

If your face is oval, make the most of it and apply your rouge in a triangle from the temple to the nose and then over to the ear.

If your eyes are small, you won't need very much rouge. If they are large and expressive, use brilliant color, and if you want to be a little bit dramatic about it, for evening, you may add just the faintest touch of color directly beneath the eyebrows.

Now about noses. If your nose is just a bit too prominent to suit your femininity, a tiny, an infinitesimal touch of rouge beneath the tip will seem to shorten it. If your lip is long and determined—maybe just a bit too much so for your own good opinion, you can shorten it in effect by faintly rouging the little beauty cleft from the nose to the mouth.

Never apply your make-up with a heavy, determined hand. Rouge delicately, faintly following the line that suits you best. Place your powder don't scatter it over your face with a powder puff. Apply your lip rouge carefully, well in the center and faintly at the ends if your mouth is large, and vividly, well into the corners if your mouth is small.

You can do a great deal toward improving the contour of your face by using the correct make-up up the correct way. It is an art that solicits your attention and merits your study.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—The government's weather service disputes the validity of Herbert Janvrin Browne's seasonal weather forecasts. They are utterly scientific and signify nothing whatever, according to the weather bureau.

The fact remains that Prophet Browne continues to make money, selling his predictions to an increasing number of hard-headed business folk who rarely let go of cold cash for anything else than what they consider value received, and who certainly do not keep it up year after year on any other basis, anyway.

It surely seems as if even an unscientific business man ought to be able to estimate a weather forecast's reliability by checking it up with the subsequent actual weather. From the very fact that Prophet Browne keeps his clients, it looks to me as if there must be something in his predictions.

Meteorological science's hostility to Prophet Browne appears to be due in large part, to the circumstance that he broke into weather prophecy rather unceremoniously.

Originally Herbert was not a scientist, but a newspaper man. From that he graduated into the business of furnishing confidential Washington information to a number of corporations whose plans are largely influenced by developments in the rents, and it inevitably will affect climatic conditions." The cost? Not more, Browne answers, than the cost of a fleet of battleships.

Seafaring men agree that icebergs affect weather. How far inland may be open to question. Browne believes whole continental areas can be affected.

There is nothing small about his scheme. He mentions five friends six to eight feet thick and one to six thousands miles in extent. It is not too large an order, he says, for modern engineering. They say at the navy department that it isn't an impossibility, but what it would do to the weather science has not had time yet to discuss fully.

Broiled Hamburg Steak on Onion Rings

Waldorf Salad
Cheese Pie
In today's recipes is a new version of the familiar hamburger steak and onions. You may have your own recipe for cheese pie, but here is a new one for you to try out.

Today's Recipes
Cheese Pie—For the crust, mix together one and one-fourth cups of flour, one-fourth glass sugar, one teaspoon baking powder, a pinch of salt. Beat an egg, and add together with two tablespoons of butter which has been melted. Add one-half teaspoon of vanilla and knead. If the dough is too stiff, add a small quantity. Line the pie plate with this crust mixture. For the cheese mixture, strain all water from a pound of pot cheese, and cream well. Add five tablespoons sugar, mix well. Add a tablespoon of melted butter and two well-beaten eggs, then a pinch of salt. Add three-fourths glass of cream. Stir till the mixture is smooth. Add two tablespoons flour and a teaspoon vanilla. Pour this batter into pie plate which has been lined with the dough, and bake in a moderate oven until slightly browned.

Broiled Hamburg Steak on Onion Ring—Two cups ground lean raw beef, one-fourth cup ground suet, one cup soft fine bread crumbs, seven strips bacon, seven slices Spanish onion, one-half inch thick, one tablespoon chopped parsley, three tablespoons butter, two teaspoons onion juice, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one tablespoon water. Lay the slices of onion in a buttered shallow baking dish. Pour over them two tablespoons of melted butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper, add the water, cover closely and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for thirty minutes or until tender. In the meantime cook the chopped parsley in one tablespoon of butter and combine with the beef, suet, crumbs and seasonings. Knead until thoroughly mixed. Mold into seven flat cakes and wrap each with a slice of onion. Place each cake on an onion slice in the baking dish and broil under direct heat for five minutes on each side. Baste occasionally with the dripping. Serve at once from the baking dish. If it is not convenient to broil the meat cakes by direct heat pan-broil them in a hot skillet and serve on the onion slices.

Herbert Browne's latest proposal looks toward a regulation of the weather by an attack on polar ice.

"Crack it loose," he urges, "from the edges of the great floes in the far north and south, set it adrift in the ocean currents, and it inevitably will affect climatic conditions."

Diet and Health

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D., AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

Perversion of Appetite
"I crave black magenta and could eat a 5-cent block a day. It seems to relieve gas in my stomach and satisfy a longing for chalky substance. I am a woman past 40 and have grown children."

"MRS. R."

The craving to eat things that are not a normal part of the diet is known as pica. It may be a habit, but frequently it shows a mineral starvation. This has been proved in animals. For instance, African cattle sometimes develop a pica known as osteophagia; they will eat dry wood, old bones, stones and even gnaw each other's horns. It was noticed that the animals never contracted osteophagia when the pastures were good, and experimentally it was proved that the disease was due to a mineral deficiency and could be cured by feeding the animals in such a way that the deficiency was made up.

The fact that you suffer from gas may show that your diet is wrong, Mrs. R., and if it is, you probably have a mineral deficiency. If you will send for the article on Balanced Diet, it will help you. Have you had a physical check-up?

"I've read in a paper recently—forgot it, who is the authority—that bebbing the hair will cause it to grow more and more around the neck until it reaches the chin and causes a beard. I am somewhat worried, for my hair always grew long and even lower, and it has been bobbed only two years ago. I dread to have it grow longer. What is your idea?"

My idea, Miss H., is that of all the nonsense written about bobbed hair, this has the most root. If you have had your neck shaved, the hair growing back has probably been stimulated. Shaving, or even clipping, the neck is not a good practice. The best barbers in New York simply use the scissors. It is absurd to think that cutting the hair on the neck will stimulate the hair follicles on the face. I've been bobbed many years and most of my friends are bobbed, but not any of us are growing beards.

We have an article on the Care of the Hair and Scalp which you may have.

"I used to look like an emaciated, water-soaked rat, but now, thanks to Peterizing, look like a henan! I have gained from 13 to 195 pounds—65 pounds. At 195 pounds I am a prize winner for gainers. My flesh is solid and distributed evenly. I eat heavily of potatoes and bread, and consume lots of milk daily. Am 20 years old and live on a farm, so get plenty of outdoor exercise. But this weight won't affect my heart or produce organic trouble, will it?"

You did not say what your height is, so I don't know what your normal weight should be. P. For 195 pounds you would have to be around 6 feet 3 or 4 inches tall, so I imagine you overdo your Peterizing in a hurry. You'll have to reverse the process now and reduce a bit.

Cut the milk down to two glasses a day, and then, if necessary, limit your bread and butter and sweets.

Yes, if you are overweight, it may eventually affect your heart, and you might get diabetes, or kidney trouble, or list of other troubles.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Here is a new definition of education and very different from the old idea of it. "Education is an effort to get out of a child what the Lord put in."

Education, then, continues all through life, doesn't it? All that the Lord put in us when we were born comes out in the stress and strain of living. The meanness and desire to win at any cost, let others bear the burdens, saving our own backs, they all come out of the crucible of life. And the fine qualities—courage, unselfishness, energy, high ideals—also come out as pure gold.

"MY DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I take pleasure in reading your column each day, and seeing the letter about the young man who is trying to make something of himself. I am a common, I decided to write you in regard to my problem, and will appreciate any information you may give me."

"My family is also common and averse to education. In order to get ahead and make something of myself I was obliged to leave home at an early age and have had to assume all responsibility for myself. I have made my mark in the world. I am 20 and engaged to marry a very capable, girl somewhat older than myself. Now, I would like to know if I can be married at this age without my parents' consent, and if one has to have a residence of one's own, and if one has to have a position in the city and would like to be married upon my arrival there, in order that I may enjoy the comforts of a good home and well cooked food. I will watch the column for your kind reply."

The legal age at which a man may marry in your state, without his parents' consent, is 21, G. G. If you are younger you must file notice five days in advance and present your birth certificate or other proof of age. You can then be married at the city chapel, only by a judge of a court of record.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: Will you please answer the question for me before St. Patrick's day, as I am to have a party at that time? I am engaged to a young man and have been keeping company with him three years. He has given me two diamond rings, one of which is an engagement ring. I have been wearing both on the same finger. Please tell me if this is correct or not, or should the engagement ring be worn alone. I have been very much puzzled about this and have been criticised on several occasions."

"MARGARET," I would wear the engagement ring alone, Margaret, although as your fiancé gave them both to you I don't see that it matters much. Why not wear one on the right hand, and the engagement ring on the corresponding finger of the left?

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am in great distress and want your advice. I am 53 years old and am going with a fellow 35. He wants to marry me, but I have five children, the youngest 12 years old. I am afraid he will mistreat them. I am very much in love with him and he treats me wonderfully. Do you think he will overlook my children? He seems to talk now as though he loved them, but I would hate to marry him and then be disappointed. Please give me your advice on his question."

"WORKED," I think there is very little chance for happiness in a marriage where there is such disparity of age, and children add to the complications. You will be very wise if you refuse the man.

FROGGIE GOES FISHING BUT GETS CAUGHT

Baby Frog, however, was no longer listening to his grandfather's words of wisdom. He was watching something closely, and Peter, looking in the same direction, saw what he thought was a small stump sticking out of the water.

"I see a skater! I see a skater!" croaked the youngster. "Just you watch me, Father! You say an old enough to go hunting by myself, but that insect will be in my tummy before he knows what has happened. I will hop up on that stump and then kerplunk! Mr. Strider will walk no more upon the water."

Papa Bullfrog looked in the direction in which his young son was speeding, and saw the dark thing sticking out of the pool. He croaked in dismay. "Come back! Come back! That is no stump you're heading for, son, but a cruel!"

Alas and alack! Before the words were out of his mouth the "stump" moved, stretched and swallowed. Poor Froggie, who would a-fishing go, disappeared down a long, curved throat.

And now Peter discovered what the thing was—it was a beak! Slowly the long-curved thing that looked like a stump turned. It was covered with feathers! It moved! It came nearer to the bank! Now the boy could clearly see a round, shiny, black head and a bright beak eye.

How frightened the frogs were. They mourned for poor Froggie but they didn't intend to take any chances of meeting with the same fate. As the little ripples on the water told them that the creature was coming their way, down they dove into the mud at the bottom of the pool—swallowed. Poor Froggie, who would a-fishing go, disappeared down a long, curved throat.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE SPIRITUAL MAGNET—The Lord hath appeared of old unto me, saying, Yea, I have loved thee with an everlasting love; therefore with loving-kindness have I drawn thee.—Jeremiah 31:3.

REASON TO SMILE; TIME TO WHITTLE

President Coolidge seemed to enjoy his last days in Washington. If he has any regrets other than those which arise naturally upon leaving old friends and severing old associations, he is hiding them successfully. Reports say that he is in an unusually cheerful mood. And there is reason for this happiness and high spirits.

Throughout five and one-half years Mr. Coolidge has handled the most difficult job in the world with the highest measure of success, and with a minimum of friction and lost motion. His achievements have won for him the applause of the world and the hearty respect of everybody, even of his political foes, who also have acquired a hearty appreciation of his fighting powers. He has said little and has done much. And as he quits the helm and remarks to himself "and that's that," and sits down to whittle for a while, the country finds itself in a flood tide of unexampled prosperity largely because of the wisdom and efficiency of his administration.

Calvin Coolidge goes into voluntary retirement more popular with the nation and wielding more influence and possessing more potential political strength than any other president within the memory of living man, with the possible exception of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt. He also leaves office showing less wear and tear from the strain of the executive task than any other recent outgoing president has shown. All this is largely because he has stuck rather strictly to his job, refusing to be distracted by extraneous matters; has delivered the goods, has refused to worry, and has kept his own counsel.

And that brings up the interesting circumstance that even to this day the country does not know just why Mr. Coolidge declined to run for a second elective term—so close-mouthed can he be—beyond the fact that he said he had had enough, and didn't want any more of the presidency. A good many people have assumed that he quit because of the so-called "third term" issue, but the President never has said or done anything to give substance to the theory. He leaves the White House quite free as far as that matter is concerned; and so his position is totally different from the position of Colonel Roosevelt, who said he looked upon his first elective term as his second term in office, and was retiring on that account. The world knows that the colonel afterward repented of his words and recanted aggressively, though unsuccessfully. Mr. Coolidge could enter a presidential race again without recanting and without being inconsistent; but it will be a great surprise if he ever does.

CHINA'S NATIONALIST CAUSE DECLARED ESTABLISHED BY SMEDLEY D. BUTLER

Brigadier General, U. S. Marine

(Smedley Darlington Butler was born at West Chester, Pa., July 30, 1881. Appointed to the U. S. Marine Corps in 1899, and brigadier general in 1921. Butler was given leave of absence in 1924 and 1925 to act as safety director of the city of Philadelphia. He has been in command of the marine corps in China since the Nationalist revolution.)

Nationalist means of the people, by the people and for the people.

The Chinese at first protested vigorously the presence of foreign military forces on their territory, but the attitude toward the United States has changed entirely. The feeling toward us is "on top."

When we left China a month ago, the Nationalist government presented me with a large silver loving cup and recently sent to the corps a silver plaque six feet tall.

I believe China is now autonomous, and is now a government representative of all the people. It is, however, a military dictatorship. Soldiers have been "outcasts" in China, but now they are coming into their own, and it may be 100 years before conditions are entirely rectified.

The principles of the Nationalist government will live on. The present regime may fall and be replaced by others. China may even have a dictatorship for a period. But the ideal of representative government is firmly implanted there.

You must remember things in China move slowly. The Chinese think in terms of centuries, while we measure political time by 45 minutes. One revolution in China lasted 300 years.

If the Chinese achieve peaceful representative government within 100 years they will feel they have done well. Everything runs in cycles, and while one class of men dominates governments, and then another.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

There are faces and faces. Some are oval, and some are round. Some are classically correct as to contour and features. Others, and these are in a far greater majority, have turned up noses or stubby chins. "Well, but of course," I say, "there are, in this nice, uncertain world of ours, all variations of beauty from the classical era to the piquant loveliness of the modern woman—a charm that defies all traditions and is, nevertheless, quite fascinating."

Beauty, you know, refuses to be limited to a measuring rule. The poor little Cinderella who haunted the gallery of the museum with her tape measure and broke her heart over the discrepancy of her own proportions, the goddess of the Aphrodite, had much to learn.

Don't sigh for the unattainable. All the wishing in the world won't add the suspicion of an inch to the length of your chin. On the other hand, a little touch of rouge right at the tip of the chin will add an effect of that extra length—and after all the effect is all one wants— isn't it?

There are "tricks" of make-up that you really ought to know. As a matter of fact, you haven't given your beauty a fair chance until you learn to apply them. I suppose there are thousands of women who long for the oval face when they have the cherub roundness of the circular contour. And of those thousands, probably not more than a baker's dozen know that to rouge high on the cheek bones, beneath the eyes and close to the nose, is one very simple way of attaining that oval effect.

Never apply your make-up with a heavy, determined hand. Rouge delicately, faintly following the line that suits you best. Place your powder—don't scatter it over your face with a powder puff. Apply your lip rouge carefully, well in the center and faintly at the ends if your mouth is large, and vividly, well into the corners if your mouth is small.

You can do a great deal toward improving the contour of your face by using the correct make-up in the correct way. It is an art that solicits your attention and merits your study.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—The government's weather service disputes the validity of Herbert Janvyn Browne's seasonal weather forecasts. They are utterly scientific and signify nothing whatever, according to the weather bureau.

The fact remains that Prophet Browne continues to make money, selling his predictions to an increasing number of hard-headed business folk who rarely let go of cold cash for anything else than what they consider value received, and who certainly do not keep it up year after year on any other basis, anyway.

Once started, Herbert went to the mat for fair with his problem. By no means all the government's scientists pool-pool him as the weather bureau's scientists do. The weather bureau, it must be admitted, is scientifically spoken of as ultra-conservative. It has the most likable personnel imaginable, but the harsh truth is that up-and-coming scientists do not speak of it as progressive.

The Smithsonian Institution, for instance, conducts its weather investigations wholly independently of the weather bureau's. Or, as Captain C. S. Kempff, chief of the naval hydrographic office, expresses it: "A man has to go to sea to understand the weather," which no weather bureauer ever does, except as a passenger.

Herbert Browne's latest proposal looks toward a regulation of the weather by an attack on polar ice.

"Crack it loose," he urges, "from the edges of the great floes in the far north and south, set it adrift in the ocean currents, and it inevitably will affect climatic conditions."

The cost? Not more, Browne answers, than the cost of a fleet of battleships.

Seafaring men agree that icebergs affect weather. How far inland may be open to question. Browne believes whole continental areas can be affected.

There is nothing small about his scheme. He mentions ice floes six to eight feet thick and one to six thousand miles in extent. It is not too large an order, he says, for modern engineering. They say at the navy department that it isn't an impossibility, but what it would do to the weather science has not had time yet to discuss fully.

Broiled Hamburg Steak on Onion Rings.

Scalloped Potatoes.

Waldorf Salad.

Cheese Pie.

In today's recipes is a new version of the familiar hamburger steak and onions. You may have your own recipe for cheese pie, but here is a new one for you to try out.

Today's Recipes

Cheese Pie—For the crust, mix together one and one-fourth glasses of flour, one-fourth glass sugar, one teaspoon baking powder, a pinch of salt. Beat an egg, and add together with two tablespoons of butter which has been melted. Add one-half teaspoon of vanilla and knead. If milk is necessary to make the dough soft, use a small quantity. Line the pie plate with this crust mixture. For the cheese mixture, strain all water from a pound of pot cheese, and cream well. Add five tablespoons sugar, mix well. Add a tablespoon of melted butter and two well-beaten eggs, then a pinch of salt. Add three-fourths glass of cream. Stir till the mixture is smooth.

Add two tablespoons flour and a teaspoon vanilla. Pour this batter into pie plate which has been lined with the dough, and bake in a moderate oven until slightly browned.

Broiled Hamburg Steak on Onion Rings—Two cups ground lean raw beef, one-fourth cup ground suet, one cup soft fine bread crumbs, seven strips bacon, seven slices Spanish onion, one-half inch thick, one tablespoon chopped parsley, three tablespoons butter, two teaspoons onion juice, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one tablespoon water. Lay the slices of onion in a buttered shallow baking dish. Pour over them two tablespoons of melted butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper, add the water, cover closely and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for thirty minutes or until tender. In the meantime cook the chopped parsley in one tablespoon of butter and combine with the beef, suet, crumbs and seasonings. Knead until thoroughly mixed. Mold into seven flat cakes and wrap each with a slice of bacon. Place each cake on an onion slice in the baking dish and broil under direct heat for five minutes on each side. Broil occasionally with the dripping. Serve at once from the baking dish. If it is not convenient to broil the meat cakes by direct heat pan-broil them in a hot skillet and serve on the onion slices.

Diet and Health

BY LILLIAN PETERS, M.D., AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

Perversion of Appetite
"I crave black magenta and could eat a 5-cent block a day. It seems to relieve gas in my stomach and satisfy a longing for chalky substance. I am a woman past 40 and have grown children."—"MRS. R."

The craving to eat things that are not a normal part of the diet is known as pica. It may be a habit, but frequently it shows a mineral deficiency. This has been proved in animals. For instance, African cattle sometimes develop a pica known as osteophagia; they will eat dry wood, old bones, stones and even gnaw each other's horns. It was noticed that the animals never contracted osteophagia when the pastures were good, and experimentally it was proved that the disease was due to a mineral deficiency and could be cured by feeding the animals in such a way that the deficiency was made up.

The fact that you suffer from gas may show that your diet is wrong, Mrs. R., and if it is, you probably have a mineral deficiency. If you will send for the article on Balanced Diet, it will help you. Have you had a physical check-up?

"I've read in a paper recently—'I've forgotten who is the authority—that hebbing the hair will cause it to grow more and more around the neck until it reaches the chin and causes a beard. I am somewhat worried, for my hair always grew low on my neck, and now it is growing even lower, and it has been bobbed only two years. And I dread to have it grow longer. What is your idea?"—"MISS H."

My idea, Miss H., is that of all the nonsense written about bobbed hair, this has the most root. If you have had your neck shaved, even lower, and it has been probably been stimulated. Shaving, or even clipping, the neck, is not a good practice. The best barbers in New York simply use the scissors.

It is absurd to think that cutting the hair on the neck will stimulate the hair follicles on the face. I've been bobbed many years and most of my friends are bobbed, but not any of us are growing beards.

We have an article on the Care of the Hair and Scalp which you may have.

"I used to look like an afflicted, waterlogged rat. But now, due to Peterizing, look like a human! I have gained from 130 to 195 pounds—65 pounds. Am I not your prize winner for gainers? My flesh is solid and distributed evenly. I eat heavily of potatoes and bread, and consume lots of milk daily. Am 30 years old and live on a farm, so get plenty of outdoor exercise. But this weight won't affect my heart or produce organic trouble, will it?"—"P..."

You did not say what your height is, so I don't know what your normal weight should be. For 195 pounds you would have to be around 6 feet 3 or 4 inches tall, so I imagine you overdid your Peterizing a little. You'll have to reverse the process now and reduce a bit.

Cut the milk down to two glasses a day, and then it necessary, limit your bread and butter and sweets.

Yes, if you are overweight, may eventually affect your heart and you might get diabetes, or kidney trouble, or lots of other troubles.

Those who need instructions on how to gain or lose may have our pamphlet on the subject by following column rules.

Editor's Note: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose, nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn. "MY DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I take pleasure in reading your column each day, and seeing the letter about the young man who is trying to make something of himself. I am a people, who are common, I decided to write you in regard to my problem, and will appreciate any information you may give me."

"My family is also common and averse to education. In order to get ahead and make something of myself, I was obliged to leave home at an early age and have had to assume all responsibilities, which have made me much older in mind than I am in years. I am now 20 and engaged to marry a very capable, girl somewhat older than myself. Now, I would like to know if I can be married at this age without my parents' consent, and if one has to have a residence of any length of time when applying for a license I have an offer of a position in the city and would like to be married upon my arrival there in order that I may enjoy the comforts of a good home and well cooked food. I will watch the column for your kind reply."

The legal age at which a man may marry in your state, without his parents' consent, is 21, G. G. If you are younger you must file notice five days in advance and

"MY DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: Will you please answer this question for me before St. Patrick's day, as I am to have a party at that time? I am engaged to a young man and have been keeping company with him three years. He has given me two diamond rings, one of which is an engagement ring. I have been wearing both on the same finger. Please tell me if this is correct or not, or should the engagement ring be worn alone I have been very much puzzled about this and have been criticised on several occasions."

I would wear the engagement ring alone, Margaret, although your fiancé gave them both to you I don't see that it matters much. Why not wear one on the right hand, and the engagement ring on the corresponding finger of the left?

"MY DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am in great distress and want your advice. I am 53 years old and am going with a fellow 35. He wants to marry me, but he has five children, the youngest 12 years old. I am afraid he will mistreat them. I am very much in love with him and he treats me wonderfully. Do you think he will overlook my children? He seems to talk now as though he loved them, but I would hate to marry him and then be disappointed. Please give me your advice on his question."

"I think there is very little chance for happiness in a marriage where there is such a disparity of age, and children and the coming time. You will be very wise if you refuse the man."

Peter's Adventures

BY FLORENCE SAITH VINCENT

FROGGIE GOES FISHING BUT GETS CAUGHT
Baby Frog, however, was no longer listening to his grandfather's words of wisdom. He was watching something closely, and Peter, looking in the same direction, saw what he thought was a small stump sticking out of the water.

"I see a skater! I see a skater!" croaked the youngster. "Just you watch me, father! You say I am not old enough to go hunting by myself, but that insect will be in my 'tummy' before he knows what has happened. I will hop up on that stump and then kerplunk! Mr. Strider will walk no more upon the water."

Papa Bullfrog looked in the direction in which his young son was speeding, and saw the dark thing sticking out of the pool. He croaked in dismay.

"Come back! Come back! That is no stump upon which heading for, son, but a cruel!"

Alas and alack! Before the words were out of his mouth the "stump" moved, stretched and swallowed. Poor froggie, who would a-fishing go, disappeared down a long curved throat.

Spring baseball schedules have been drawn up for the newly-organized four-college league composed of Wilmington, Cedarville, Antioch and Wilberforce colleges, according to R. M. Borst, athletic director at Cedarville College and president of the new organization. It is planned to deal only with baseball at present and each member will play the others four times during the coming season, twice at home and twice away, Borst said. This will make a total of twelve league games for each team. The season will open about April 13 and all league games will be played on Tuesdays and Saturdays. The new organization is known as the C. A. W. W. League.

Cedarville diamond candidates began practice this week and with plenty of material available the college looks forward to a good season. Eighteen candidates are expected.

Eight members of Cedarville College's 1928-29 basketball team will be awarded letters next week.

Robert Jacobs, guard, the only senior on the squad, was elected honorary captain for the past season. In addition to Jacobs, letters will be awarded to the following: George Gordon, Roy Smith, Donald Allen, Albert Turner, Owen Peters, Dallas Marshall, Jerry Kyle and Leo Reed, senior manager.

Xenia Central High School "Buccaneers," basketball champions of the Miami Valley League for the second straight season, will be formally awarded the championship for 1929 at the annual spring meeting of representatives of the six schools in the league in Xenia Tuesday night, March 12.

The meeting will be held at Xenia Central High School and will be attended by the principals, faculty managers and coaches of the six schools. It will be preceded by a dinner at the school cafeteria about 6:30 p. m. Afterward the coaches are expected to select first and second all-league teams for the season. League activities this spring will also be discussed and competition in track, tennis, golf and possibly baseball may be considered.

Coach Walter "Pinky" Wilson, Xenia Central High mentor, disclosed Friday that seven members of the "Buccaneer" court squad will be awarded letters when the insignias arrive. They have been ordered.

John Gibney, Robert Buell, Joe Smittle, Birch Bell, Ralph Scurry, John Hurley and Paul Weaver will receive letters. John Little, senior manager, will be given a manager's letter.

XENIANS SEE BROWN ASSUME NEW OFFICE

JESSE ANDERSON BREAKS TWO LEAGUE RECORDS IN BOWLING

Crashing the maples for a three-game total of 678, including a single game of 276, Jesse Anderson, member of the Red Wing Co. bowling team, smashed two Recreation League records in a match between the Red Wings and the champion Greene County Lumber Co. Thursday night.

Anderson narrowly missed a perfect score in his first game, making eleven out of a possible twelve strikes. He laid in six straight strikes, then got a thin pocket hit and made only six pins. He picked up his spare and then struck out for a 276 score, exceeding the former league record of 265, held by Lawrence Wagner, by eleven pins. Anderson followed with games of 205 and 197 for a brilliant 678 series, bettering the former high three-game record of 660 held by Hollis Peterson, by eighteen pins. Three other players also turned in 600 totals. Peterson rolled 634, including a single game of 255. Frame tallied 630 and Brickel came through with 608.

Despite Anderson's record-shattering exhibit, the Greene County Lumber Co., rolling a three-game total of 2,925, won two out of three games from the second-place Red Wings, and now lead the league by a margin of ten full games. Box score:

Spring baseball schedules have been drawn up for the newly-organized four-league league composed of Wilmington, Cedarville, Antioch and Wilberforce colleges, according to R. M. Horst, athletic director at Cedarville College and president of the new organization. It is planned to deal only with baseball at present and each member will play the others four times during the coming season, twice at home and twice away, Horst said. This will make a total of twelve league games for each team. The season will open about April 13 and all league games will be played on Tuesdays and Saturdays. The new organization is known as the C. A. W. W. League. Cedarville diamond candidates began practice this week and with plenty of material available the college looks forward to a good season. Eighteen candidates are expected.

Eight members of Cedarville College's 1928-29 basketball team will be awarded letters next week. Robert Jacobs, guard, the only senior on the squad, was elected honorary captain for the past season. In addition to Jacobs, letters will be awarded to the following: George Gordon, Roy Smith, Donald Allen, Albert Turner, Owen Peters, Dallas Marshall, Jerry Kyle and Leo Reed, senior manager.

Xenia Central High School "Buccaneers" basketball champions of the Miami Valley League for the second straight season, will be formally awarded the championship for 1929 at the annual spring meeting of representatives of the six schools in the league in Xenia Tuesday night, March 12. The meeting will be held at Xenia Central High School and will be attended by the principals, faculty managers and coaches of the six schools. It will be preceded by a dinner in the school cafeteria about 6:30 p. m. Afterward the coaches are expected to select first and second all-league teams for the season. League activities this spring will also be discussed and competition in track, tennis, golf and possibly baseball may be considered.

Coach Walter "Pinky" Wilson, Xenia Central High mentor, disclosed Friday that seven members of the "Buccaneer" court squad will be awarded letters when the insignias arrive. They have been ordered. John Gibney, Robert Buell, Joe Smith, Birch Bell, Ralph Seery, John Hurley and Paul Weaver will receive letters. John Little, senior manager, will be given a manager's letter.

XENIANS SEE BROWN ASSUME NEW OFFICE
Deputy County Auditor and Mrs. P. H. Creswell, who attended the Hoover-Curtis inauguration, were also present, while in Washington, at the ceremony installing Walter F. Brown, of Toledo, as post-master general.

It was through personal friendship between Mr. Brown and Mr. Creswell that the Xenians were invited to attend the ceremony, which was one of the most interesting features of their Washington stay. They returned home Wednesday night.

XENIAN BURNED
Ora Barnes, Locust St., employee of the Red Wing Co., at Dayton, was burned about the face, left eye, ears, neck, chest and on both arms in an explosion of a hot alkali solution at the Dayton plant Thursday. His burns, however, are said to be not serious.

JESSE ANDERSON BREAKS TWO LEAGUE RECORDS IN BOWLING

Crashing the maples for a three-game total of 678, including a single game of 276, Jesse Anderson, member of the Red Wing Co. bowling team, smashed two Recreation League records in a match between the Red Wings and the champion Greene County Lumber Co. Thursday night. Anderson narrowly missed a perfect score in his first game, making eleven out of a possible twelve strikes. He laid in six straight strikes, then got a thin pocket hit and made only six pins. He picked up his spare and then struck out for a 276 score, exceeding the former league record of 265, held by Lawrence Wagner, by eleven pins. Anderson followed with games of 205 and 197 for a brilliant 678 series, bettering the former high three-game record of 660 held by Hollis Peterson, by eighteen pins. Three other players also turned in 600 totals. Peterson rolled 634, including a single game of 255, Frame tallied 630 and Bricket came through with 603.

Despite Anderson's record-shattering exhibit, the Greene County Lumber Co., rolling a three-game total of 2,925, won two out of three games from the second-place Red Wings, and now lead the league by a margin of ten full games. Box score:

DAYTON STIVERS IN GOOD POSITION TO AGAIN TAKE TITLE

Team That Defeated Xenia Favorite in State Tourney

COLUMBUS, March 8.—With enthusiasm aroused to a high pitch, hundreds of high school basketball fans from all over the state invaded six Ohio cities today to witness forty class A and forty-four class B teams battle for district honors and the right to participate in the state championship finals to be held here March 15 and 16.

The scenes of the epic struggles—Dayton, Findlay, Athens, Akron, Dennison, and Delaware—looked on a carnival atmosphere as optimistic rosters paraded down main business streets waving school pennants and informing the townsfolk in other bolsterous ways they had come to cheer their teams to victory.

The quintets pairing in the district meets are survivors of forty sectional tournaments which were held last week. The district champions will journey here next week to decide the state high school class supremacy in both divisions. Few upsets were registered in the sectionals, as a general rule the favorite quintets surviving in great style. Four of last year's class A semi-finalists are still in the running and are expected to make strong bids for victory today.

They are Akron South, Dayton Stivers, Columbus Central and Canton McKinley. Three teams—Hamilton, Hillsboro and Fremont—while floundering in the state championship contests last year, were eliminated in the sectionals. East Liverpool, defeated in the first round here in 1928, has fought its way to the district meet.

Toledo Libbey, another quintet in the finals last year, did not enter competition this year. Dayton Stivers, the defending champions of the class A division, have a fine chance to repeat their feat of last year. They breezed through the sectional tournament without difficulty.

Dayton, southwestern district—class A: Dayton Stivers and Hamilton Catholic, Dayton Steele and Cincinnati Woodward, Dayton Kiser and Wilmington, Dayton Chambliss and Cincinnati Withrow. Sixteen winners will compete for the state championship in the two divisions at the coliseum here next Friday and Saturday, while class A teams are in the limelight, teams representing smaller schools are being followed closely.

Dayton Stivers and Cincinnati Woodward, city champions of the Queen City, are predicted by crystal gazers to clash in the district finals at Dayton, although it would not be surprising to see either Dayton Steele, Chambliss or Kiser represent the district in the championship games.

PLANS NON-STOP WORLD FLIGHT

Circumnavigation of the globe, by airplane, in a non-stop flight of five days, is being planned by Major Art Goebel, of Los Angeles, winner of the Dole flight to Hawaii, as he convalesces from a long illness. His ship is being built at Wichita, Kas., and also seven refueling ships which will await him at strategic points en route and fill his gas tanks in the air. The entire route, as he sketches it, will cover 18,000 miles, most of it over the icy wastes of the Far North. Above, his father is aiding him in adjusting a parachute before a flight.

DAUGHTER AIDS BOOTH'S SUCCESSOR

An active worker in the Salvation Army is Mrs. Wesley Taylor, of Detroit, whose father, Gen. Edward J. Higgins, has been elected commander-in-chief of the organization, succeeding Gen. W. Bramwell Booth, who persistently has fought attempts to oust him from power, despite his advanced age and failing health. Mrs. Taylor is above with her three-year-old daughter, Gladys.

Husband Slasher Found Guilty

Mrs. Dorothy Leonard of Flushing, L. I., was guilty of manslaughter in the second degree in connection with the fatal stabbing of her husband. Her story that she had been led to drinking by her deceased husband and that in a drunken stupor she had stabbed him led the court to recommend mercy.

Mileage King

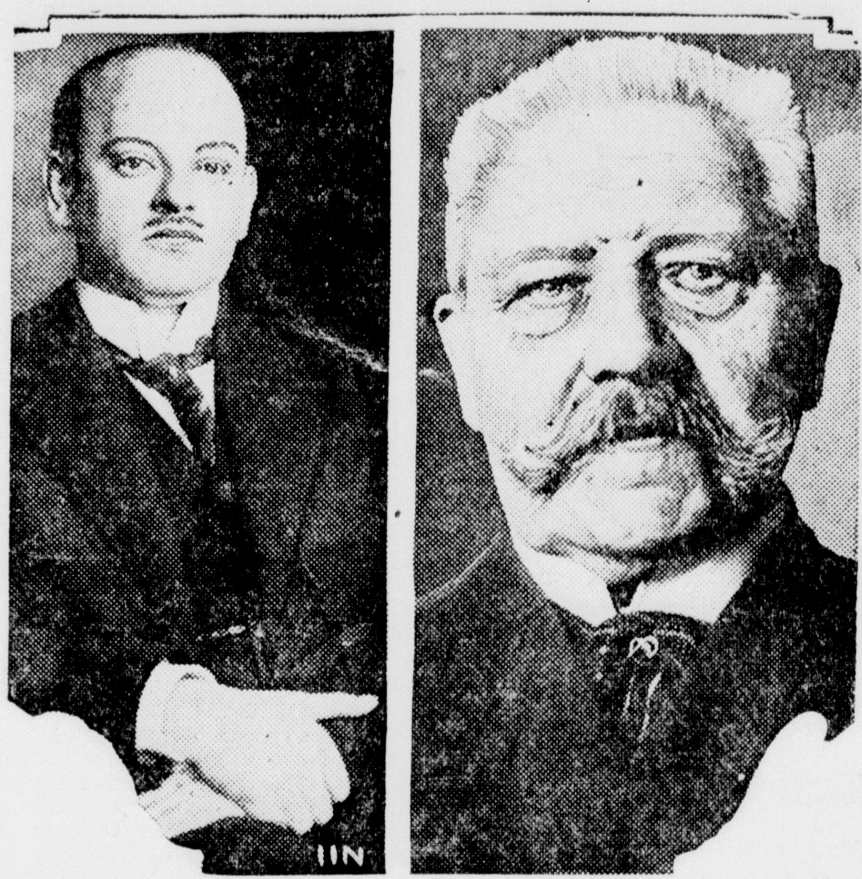

If Fred W. Kelly (above), Los Angeles airmail pilot, had flown straight ahead for the last year instead of back and forth between Los Angeles and Salt Lake, he would have circled the globe twice and been half way around on his third lap. His 1928 record is calculated as 115,760 miles which he negotiated in 1,151 flying hours.

LINDY AND LADY LOVE, FIRST WORLD AIR ROMANCE

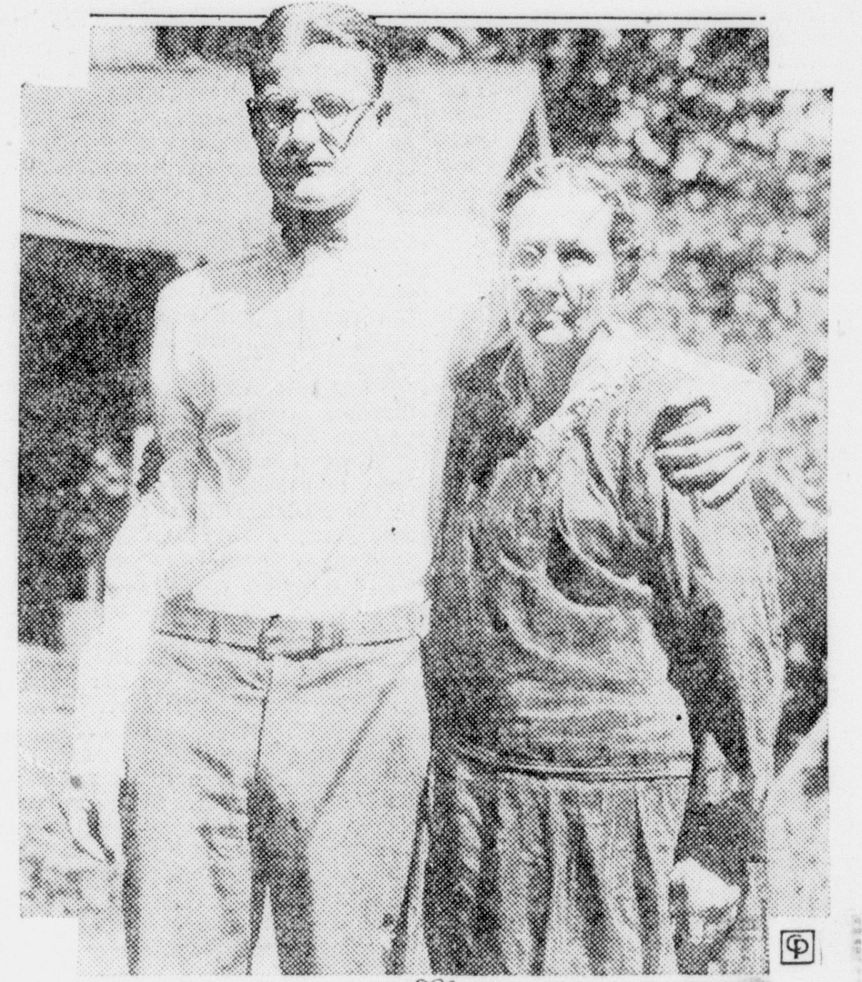

Dan Cupid, love sprite, had to fly high to score this brilliant mark, the first world famous romance born in the clouds.

Republican Regime Threatened

Sinister suggestions of a dictatorship in the person of President von Hindenburg, right, are widespread in Germany following the government's failure to form a coalition party in support of Foreign Minister Dr. Stresemann, left, who has been repudiated by his own party. The situation was precipitated by the reports of a Franco-Belgian military agreement which caused wide divergence of party opinion.

IOWA "LOST SON" HOAX UNCOVERED

Arrest for attempted burglary has disclosed the fact that "Sammy Stamp," who came to Clinton, Ia., last summer, claiming to be the son of Mrs. Mary Stamp, who had not been heard of since he was a small child, is in reality, Spencer Shaffer, of Columbus, O., ex-Iowa convict. He learned of the missing boy from another son of Mrs. Stamp, who was imprisoned with him, and decided to perpetrate the hoax. This photo of Mrs. Stamp and Shaffer was taken at the time of the reconciliation last summer.

COAL AND IRON POLICE UNDER FIRE

Roused by the slaying of John Borkoski, Tyre, Pa., coal miner, an intensive campaign is being waged in Pennsylvania to rid the state of the "coal and iron police" system under which the coal companies pay police, hired by the state, to protect their properties. Borkoski died, it is alleged, as the result of a brutal beating administered by coal and iron police at Santiago, Pa. Above, the three police charged with the murder, left to right, Lieut. W. J. Lyster, Privates H. P. Watts and Frank Slapikas. Center, left to right, John Higgins, who also says he was mistreated by the police; Sophie Borkoski, the widow, and her husband. Below, the Borkoski children, Bertha, 12; Anthony, 10; John, 17, and Helen, 15.

Almost Enough Money to Retire

The "Millionaire Straphanger" of Yonkers, N. Y., John E. Andrus, is no longer straphanging. He's just turned 88 and has amassed some millions in the coin of the realm. Not enough to retire or take vacations as Ford and Edison do, but plenty to be able to afford a car.

Trouble Doesn't Fade Beauty

Mrs. Virginia S. H. Hayes, of New York, loses nothing of her good looks defending a separation suit brought by her former husband, Giles G. Healy, who is endeavoring to set aside her Reno divorce and subsequent marriage to her banker husband.

Two Husbands Gone—One More to Go

Ann Murdock, stage star, is about to go through her third divorce action, according to persistent reports from Paris. This time she is parting from Gayne (Bubble) Williams, ukulele plunker in Montmartre cafes. His real name is Hallam Keep Williams, and he is a nephew of Charles Hallam Keep, Under-Secretary of the Treasury in the Roosevelt administration. Miss Murdock's first marriage was to H. Burgess Jones, and her second to Harry C. Powers, New York broker.

To the man who thinks all motor oils are alike

TWO PAIRS of shoes may look alike, fit equally well, and sell for the same price. But that's no sign they are alike.

Two kinds of oil may seem as much alike as twins. Yet vital differences in character appear at once when you check them point by point for—the 4 essentials of complete and proper lubrication

1. LOW CARBON CONTENT
2. NON-FOULING CARBON
3. IDEAL BODY AT ALL OPERATING TEMPERATURES
4. LOW POUR POINT

Thousands of automobile owners have found that one oil—Shell Motor Oil—meets these four requirements in every way.

Many otherwise good lubricants produce excessive carbon of a hard, flinty nature. The little carbon which forms in an engine lubricated by Shell, is soft, fluffy—the kind that does not cling to motor parts but actually blows out with the exhaust gases.

Regular users of Shell Motor Oil report a marked reduction in carbon removal jobs. They enjoy freedom from power losses due to carbon accumulations, "frozen" piston rings and pitted valves.

And because Shell Motor Oil has ideal body at all operating temperatures, users find it as safe at sixty miles an hour as at twenty. Shell won't break down.

With body and stamina, Shell provides a low pour point to insure easy starting in cold weather. Motorists who depend on Shell don't have to risk changing to a lighter-bodied oil in winter.

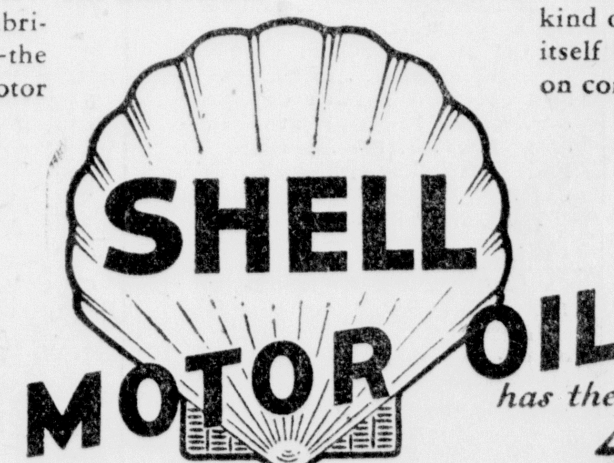

Shell Motor Oil is today's outstanding development in the science of automobile lubrication. Shell crude comes from hand-picked wells. Refined by the new and exclusive Shell-developed, low-temperature process. Never scorched, never weakened by the heat of ordinary refining practice. Tested 259 times to certify the unvarying quality of every quart.

Make any test of that quality you want. Put Shell Motor Oil over the road in the hardest kind of service. Shell best proves itself by performance; it thrives on comparison.

Stop at the Sign of the Shell

And let the Shell Lubrication Chart be your guide. You'll find courteous attendants at the familiar yellow and red service stations. Convenient everywhere.

Have you tried 400 "Extra Dry" Shell Gasoline? Starts quick. Burns clean. And ought to cost more, but doesn't.

Helped at Change of Life

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a wonderful medicine at the Change of Life. I would get blue spells and just walk the floor. I was nervous, could not sleep at night, and was not able to do my work. I know if it had not been for your medicine I would have been in bed most of this time and had a big doctor's bill. If women would only take your medicine they would be better."—Mrs. Anna Weaver, R. F. D. No. 2, Rose Hill, Iowa.

To the man who thinks all motor oils are alike

TWO PAIRS of shoes may look alike, fit equally well, and sell for the same price. But that's no sign they are alike.

Two kinds of oil may seem as much alike as twins. Yet vital differences in character appear at once when you check them point by point for—the 4 essentials of complete and proper lubrication

1. LOW CARBON CONTENT
2. NON-FOULING CARBON
3. IDEAL BODY AT ALL OPERATING TEMPERATURES
4. LOW POUR POINT

Thousands of automobile owners have found that one oil—Shell Motor Oil—meets these four requirements in every way.

Many otherwise good lubricants produce excessive carbon of a hard, flinty nature. The little carbon which forms in an engine lubricated by Shell, is soft, fluffy—the kind that does not cling to motor parts but actually blows out with the exhaust gases.

Regular users of Shell Motor Oil report a marked reduction in carbon removal jobs . . . They enjoy freedom from power losses due to carbon accumulations, "frozen" piston rings and pitted valves.

And because Shell Motor Oil has ideal body at all operating temperatures, users find it as safe at sixty miles an hour as at twenty. Shell won't break down.

With body and stamina, Shell provides a low pour point to insure easy starting in cold weather. Motorists who depend on Shell don't have to risk changing to a lighter-bodied oil in winter.

Shell Motor Oil is today's outstanding development in the science of automobile lubrication. Shell crude comes from hand-picked wells. Refined by the new and exclusive Shell-developed, low-temperature process. Never scorched, never weakened by the heat of ordinary refining practice. Tested 259 times to certify the unvarying quality of every quart.

Make any test of that quality you want. Put Shell Motor Oil over the road in the hardest kind of service. Shell best proves itself by performance . . . thrives on comparison.

Stop at the Sign of the Shell

And let the Shell Lubrication Chart be your guide. You'll find courteous attendants at the familiar yellow and red service stations. Convenient everywhere.

Have you tried 400 "Extra Dry" Shell Gasoline? Starts quick. Burns clean. And ought to cost more, but doesn't.

RECALLS WEDDING BY WIRE

W. D. Wright, Xenia, Operated Telegraph For Long-Distance Marriage 50 Years Ago

THURSDAY marked the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage by telegraph of Miss Vashti B. Longfellow, daughter of a Baptist minister at Jamestown, to John A. Smith, of Wichita, Kansas.

The ceremony was celebrated with W. D. Wright, of this city, then manager of the Western Union telegraph office in Xenia, at the local end of the line, with the bride and her father, the latter officiating by pronouncing the pair husband and wife after the vows had been exchanged by wire.

Before arranging for the wedding, the Rev. Mr. Longfellow sought legal advice, and learned that a marriage by wire would be legal.

fellow pronounced his daughter and Smith husband and wife. He then led in prayer. The following message of congratulation was wired to Smith by Mr. Wright, who had taken a leading part in the unique ceremony.

"MAY your LINES fall in pleasant places; your CIRCUIT abound in loyal friends; your CURRENT continue without BREAK, CROSS or JAR until '39 is called and you receive the glad MES-SAGE, 'well done, thou good and faithful servant!'"

Mr. Wright, recalling the incident, said that the marriage by telegraph started a fad for such ceremonies, and he received numerous applications from sentimental young people to be wed in that manner.

Mr. Wright said that the bridegroom in the unique ceremony died a number of years ago. Of his widow's whereabouts he has no knowledge.

Passed Up!

By ROE FULKERSON

©1929 by Central Press Association, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST:

After the death of her parents, Betty Brown is compelled to make her living at what had formerly been her amusement, dancing. She attracts men to her sorrow. She loses one position after another because of the unwelcome attentions of men. At last she is ordered out of her rooming house and away from a restaurant owned by George Harris, her oldest friend, because of publicity over two men fighting about her. Her morale is broken. Andy Adair, son of rich parents, wild but not bad, suggests that he rent her an apartment, where he can come and see her. She half consents while out for a ride with him. On their way home the car skids into a tree, leaving her unconscious.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXII

Out of a hazy, fuzzy nowhere a child cried fretfully: "Mother! Mother! I want my mother!"

It sounded through Betty's dazed brain; she too, cried through dry, parched lips: "Mother! Mother! I want my mother!"

A cool, damp cloth passed over her face and dry lips. She sucked at the moisture. A tube was pushed into her mouth, and she drank eagerly of the cold orange juice which came through it; then she drifted into dreamland again.

She returned to consciousness with someone rubbing her arms and shoulders. The pungent smell of alcohol was in her nostrils. As she opened her eyes a white-capped nurse smiled down into her face. "Hello! How do you feel?"

"Where? What? How?" murmured Betty.

"In the hospital, with no bones broken. Go back to sleep, dear, you are all right."

Oh, yes! She recalled the sickening skidding of the car, and raised her hand to brush her eyes. It was barded from wrist to elbow. Her legs felt heavy; she could not move them. She turned her head to see two long rows of white beds, with nurses flitting here and there.

She closed her eyes and drifted back into a half sleep. When she awoke only a few dim night lights burned here and there in the big ward. She raised her arm to look at the bandage, and experimented with her legs. They were still heavy as lead; she could not move them. As she made an effort, a sharp pain ran up to her hip. Involuntarily she gave a shrill cry.

A nurse hurried to her side. "Can I do anything for you?" she asked. "I would like a drink, please," replied Betty. Instead of giving Betty a drink, the nurse placed a small piece of ice in her mouth, which melted refreshingly on her tongue.

"You better not talk," said the girl. "You aren't much hurt, except some scratches on your wrist. Your legs were dislocated at the knees, but you will be all right in a week or so. A gentleman was here today; you are to be moved into a room to yourself in the morning. We did not think it wise to move you today. You are to have a cast on your left leg in the morning; then we will move you. Go to sleep now if you can."

"So Andy had been to see her! She was glad. When her parents died, Andy had stayed away. She had resented it then, but Andy was standing by her now! She was glad he was not hurt, and wondered what had happened to his beautiful car."

She recalled her conversation with Andy; this accident was her punishment for having even thought of doing what he asked! She tossed restlessly, and the nurse came back to her bedside. "I think I'll give you a sedative," she said. "You are better off asleep." She rubbed Betty's arm with alcohol and administered the opiate. In a few minutes she lapsed into unconsciousness.

It was broad daylight when she awoke. The day nurse and an orderly transferred her to a wheeled cot, the nurse explaining that they had resorted to this move to get her private room before putting on the cast. The plain white garment she wore had been supplied by the hospital; Betty wondered how she could get a night gown from her room.

They moved her out into the hall and to the elevator, then to the small, but nice room. A huge door came in and after saying "Good morning," told her he had come to put her leg in a cast. The next half hour was given over to the spiral wrapping of the bandages and the application of wet plaster. While working, the doctor explained that both her knees had been thrown out of joint when the car was wrecked. One dislocation was much worse than the other; the right one did not need a cast. It was bandaged with adhesive tape, and he was sure it would be all right.

"Was the car wrecked?" asked Betty.

"Didn't hear. But you surely were!"

"Don't worry about that, dear," added the nurse. "You have enough to think about, getting well."

"How long must I stay here?" asked Betty, thinking of the hospital bills and what she would have to pay the doctor.

"Oh, a week or ten days." The doctor waved his plaster-covered hand.

"But, doctor, I can never pay you or the hospital bills!"

"Don't let those worry you. The man who called me in on the case guaranteed the hospital bills. I guess you know who it was!" He laughed as he spoke.

"That was good of Andy! He was taking care of her in reality. She learned later that the nurse was to attend her alone. She was still more grateful when the girl gave her a bath, combed her hair, and tidied her up."

"I must have someone go to my house and get some clothes," said Betty. "When I left home I didn't expect to come to a hospital!"

"Can't I telephone some of your girl friends, or some of your people, to get them for you?" asked the nurse.

"I have no people," sighed Betty. She could have added that she had no girl friends. Lois, all the girls she had known at school, had drifted out of her life when she began to dance. The girls she had known at the Iron Door, the Orpheum and at Jack Parker's had not been friends, only acquaintances. Dancing had limited her friends to men, and Andy was the only one she could depend on. George Harris had broken with her over the publication of the story of Andy's fight with Jake Daubert. The story of the automobile wreck had undoubtedly been in every newspaper in town. Of course he would never look at her again!

She had never felt so lonely and forsaken. She closed her eyes for fear the nurse would go on talking; she would cry if she had to speak again. Half an hour passed. "Are you awake?" asked the nurse. Betty feigned sleep and the nurse left the room. Betty had her eyes open when the girl returned, in her hand the little overnight bag in which Betty once carried her dance costumes.

"The boy friend brought it!" She smiled. "He's so thoughtful. He went to your room and had some of your things packed in it. We can put a night gown on you now, and have you all prettied up when he comes again. He said he would come about eight tonight."

Betty was ready to cry again, partly out of gratitude for Andy's thoughtfulness in getting her things for her, partly in exasperation at missing him by pretending to be asleep. She was glad she would have on a pretty gown when he came.

The bag contained the toilet things she always took when she danced, several night gowns and a pretty negligee she used to wear between her dances. When these were arranged on the dresser and in its drawers, Betty was as happy as possible under the circumstances. The black and blue spots here and there on her body were less painful, and her arm had less of a bandage on it. She felt she had made progress.

The nurse brought her meals and babied her all day. She was off duty at seven-thirty, but said she would stay until the arrival of Betty's boy friend.

Promptly at eight there was a rap on the door. The nurse rose, saying: "Here he is now. I'll go out as he comes in. Good night. I'll see you in the morning."

She left, and as she did so Betty looked up smilingly, expecting Andy Adair. But it was George Harris who walked into the room.

"How are you getting along?" asked George, seating himself at her bedside.

"All right, I suppose," answered Betty. "I wasn't expecting you after what you said to me the last time I saw you!"

"I'm not a fair-weather friend, like some of them," George answered, gravely.

"Well, Andy Adair isn't a fair-weather friend, either!" cried Betty. "I'm expecting him every minute."

"I'm expecting him every minute,"

"I'm expecting him every minute,"

RECALLS WEDDING BY WIRE

W. D. Wright, Xenia, Operated Telegraph For Long-Distance Marriage 50 Years Ago

THURSDAY marked the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage by telegraph of Miss Vashli B. Longfellow, daughter of a Baptist minister at Jamestown, to John A. Smith, of Wichita, Kansas. The ceremony was celebrated with W. D. Wright, of this city, then manager of the Western Union telegraph office in Xenia, at the local end of the line, with the bride and her father, the latter officiating by pronouncing the pair husband and wife after the vows had been exchanged by wire. Before arranging for the wedding, the Rev. Mr. Longfellow sought legal advice, and learned that a marriage by wire would be legal. BY SPECIAL arrangement Manager Wright succeeded in obtaining a special wire direct from Xenia to Wichita. At the hour set for the ceremony, the bridegroom took his place beside the telegraph operator in Wichita and the bride and her father appeared in the Xenia office. The marriage pledges were flashed back and forth across the wires, and the Rev. Mr. Longfellow pronounced his daughter and Smith husband and wife. He then led in prayer. The following message of congratulation was wired to Smith by Mr. Wright, who had taken a leading part in the unique ceremony: "MAY your LINES fall in pleasant places; your CIRCUIT abound in loyal friends; your CURRENT continue without BREAK, CROSS or JAR until '30' is called and you receive the glad MESSAGE 'well done, thou good and faithful servant'."

Mr. Wright, recalling the incident, said that the marriage by telegraph started a fad for such ceremonies, and he received numerous applications from sentimental young people to be wed in that manner. Mr. Wright said that the bridegroom in the unique ceremony died a number of years ago. Of his widow's whereabouts he has no knowledge.

Passed Up!

By ROE FULKERSON

READ THIS FIRST:
After the death of her parents, Betty Brown is compelled to make her living at what had formerly been her amusement, dancing. She attracts men to her sorrow. She loses one position after another because of the unwelcome attentions of men. At last she is ordered out of her rooming house and away from a restaurant owned by George Harris, her oldest friend, because of publicity over two men fighting about her. Her morale is broken. Andy Adair, son of rich parents, wild but not bad, suggests that he rent her an apartment, where he can come and see her. She half consents while out for a ride with him. On their way home the car skids into a tree, leaving her unconscious.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXII
Out of a hazy, fuzzy nowhere a child cried fretfully: "Mother! Mother! I want my mother!" It sounded through Betty's dazed brain; she too, cried through dry, parched lips: "Mother! Mother! I want my mother!" A cold, clammy cloth passed over her face and dry lips. She sucked at the moisture. A tube was pushed into her mouth, and she drank eagerly of the cold orange juice which came through it; then she drifted into dreamland again. She returned to consciousness with someone rubbing her arms and shoulders. The pungent smell of alcohol was in her nostrils. As she opened her eyes a white-capped nurse smiled down into her face. "Hello! How do you feel?" "Where? What? How?" murmured Betty. "In the hospital, with no bones broken. Go back to sleep, dear, you are all right."

"Oh, yes!" She recalled the sickening skidding of the car, and raised her hand to brush her eyes. It was barged from wrist to elbow. Her legs felt heavy; she could not move them. She turned her head to see two long rows of white beds, with nurses flitting here and there. She closed her eyes and drifted back into a half sleep. When she awoke only a few dim night lights burned here and there in the big ward. She raised her arm to look at the bandage, and experimented with her legs. They were still heavy as lead; she could not move them. As she made an effort, a sharp pain ran up to her hip. Involuntarily she gave a shrill cry. A nurse hurried to her side. "Can I do anything for you?" she asked. "I would like a drink, please," replied Betty. Instead of giving Betty a drink, the nurse placed a small piece of ice in her mouth, which melted refreshingly on her tongue. "You better not talk," said the girl. "You aren't much hurt, except some scratches on your wrist. Your legs were dislocated at the knees, but you will be all right in a week or so. A gentleman was here today; you are to be moved into a room to yourself in the morning. We did not think it wise to move you today. You are to have a cast on your left leg in the morning; then we will move you. Go to sleep now if you can."

So Andy had been to see her! She was glad. When her parents died, Andy had stayed away. She had resented it then, but Andy was standing by her now! She was glad he was not hurt, and wondered what had happened to his beautiful car. She recalled her conversation with Andy; this accident was her punishment for having even thought of doing what he asked! She tossed restlessly, and the nurse came back to the bedside. "I think I'll give you a hypodermic," she said. "You are better off asleep." She rubbed Betty's arm with alcohol and administered the opiate. In a few minutes she lapsed into unconsciousness. It was broad daylight when she awoke. The day nurse and an orderly transferred her to a wheeled cot, the nurse explaining that they had decided to move her to her private room before putting on the cast. The plain white garment she wore had been supplied by the hospital; Betty wondered how she could get a night gown from her room.

They moved her out into the hall and to the elevator, then to the small, but nice, room. A huge doctor came in, and after saying "Good morning," told her he had come to put her leg in a cast. The next half hour was given over to the spiral wrapping of the bandages and the application of wet plaster. While working, the doctor explained that both her knees had been thrown out of joint when the car was wrecked. One dislocation was much worse than the other; the right one did not need a cast. It was bandaged with adhesive tape, and he was sure it would be all right. "Was the car wrecked?" asked Betty. "Didn't hear. But you surely were!" "Don't worry about that, dear," added the nurse. "You have enough to think about, getting well."

"How long must I stay here?" asked Betty, thinking of the hospital bills and what she would have to pay the doctor.

"Oh, a week or ten days." The doctor waved his plaster-covered hand. "But, doctor, I can never pay you or the hospital bills!" "Don't let those worry you. The man who called me in on the case guaranteed the hospital bills. I guess you know who it was!" He laughed as he spoke. That was good of Andy! He was taking care of her in reality. She learned later that the nurse was to attend her alone. She was still more grateful when the girl gave her a bath, combed her hair, and tidied her up. "I must have someone go to my house and get some clothes," said Betty. "When I left home I didn't expect to come to a hospital!" "Can't I telephone some of your girl friends, or some of your people, to get them for you?" asked the nurse. "I have no people," sighed Betty. She could have added that she had no girl friends. Lois, all the girls she had known at school, had drifted out of her life when she began to dance. The girls she had known at the Iron Door, the Orpheum and at Jack Parker's had not been friends, only acquaintances. Dancing had limited her friends to men, and Andy was the only one she could depend on. George Harris had broken with her over the publication of the story of Andy's fight with Jake Daubert. The story of the automobile wreck had undoubtedly been in every newspaper in town. Of course he would never look at her again!

She had never felt so lonely and forsaken. She closed her eyes for fear the nurse would go on talking; she would cry if she had to speak again. Half an hour passed. "Are you awake?" asked the nurse. Betty feigned sleep and the nurse left the room. Betty had her eyes open when the girl returned, in her hand the little overnight bag in which Betty once carried her dance costumes. "The boy friend brought it!" She smiled. "He's so thoughtful! He went to your room and had some of your things packed in it. We can put a night gown on you now, and have you all prettied up when he comes again. He said he would come about eight tonight."

Betty was ready to cry again, partly out of gratitude for Andy's thoughtfulness in getting her things for her, partly in exasperation at missing him by pretending to be asleep. She was glad she would have a pretty gown when he came.

The bag contained the toilet things she always took when she danced, several night gowns and a pretty negligee she used to wear between her dances. When these were arranged on the dresser and in its drawers, Betty was as happy as possible under the circumstances. The black and blue spots here and there on her body were less painful, and her arm had less of a bandage on it. She felt she had made progress.

The nurse brought her meals and babbled her all day. She was off duty at seven-thirty, but said she would stay until the arrival of Betty's boy friend.

Promptly at eight there was a rap on the door. The nurse rose, saying: "Here he is now. I'll go out as he comes in. Good night. I'll see you in the morning."

She left, and as she did so Betty looked up smilingly, expecting Andy Adair. But it was George Harris who walked into the room. "How are you getting along?" asked George, seating himself at her bedside. "All right, I suppose," answered Betty. "I wasn't expecting you after what you said to me the last time I saw you!" "I'm not a fair-weather friend, like some of them," George answered, gravely. "Well, Andy Adair isn't a fair-weather friend, either!" cried Betty. "I'm expecting him every minute."

dential candidate of the anti-revolutionist party, also was revealed as one of the rebel leaders with General Escobar at Torreón. The attorney general's office has ordered confiscation of property of all rebel leaders. With the rebel state of Vera Cruz completely in the hands of federal troops and Gen. Jesus M. Aguirre in flight to Tehuantepec, state of Oaxaca, the authorities expressed confidence that one more battle in the southern area would end operations there. Gen. Juan Alvarado directed federal forces against the rebels at Torreón. It was estimated that General Escobar had about 2,000 insurgents entrenched there after he was joined by Gen. Francisco Urbalejo of Durango, who was sent out to pursue the rebels deserted the government and joined the insurgents.

THE STORY OF A GIRL WHO MADE MEN LIKE HER
"Did he telephone?" asked George, curiously. "No, but he went to my room and got my things and brought them here this morning. He said he would be back at eight to see me." "No," contradicted George. "I induced your landlady to pack the bag for me." "And Andy hasn't been here at all?" asked Betty, in alarm. "Not that I know of. I came yesterday—as soon as I read of the accident in the papers. I arranged to have them take you out of that ward and get the doctor to come and see what he could do." "Oh, George, forgive me!" cried Betty, the tears stealing from under her lashes. "They didn't tell me, and I supposed it was Andy!" (TO BE CONTINUED)

The Theater

Not so long ago the movies were believed to be at the opposite pole from grand opera but there is proof that circumstances alter cases—cases of anything. The proof comes with the announcement of Pathe that seven grand operas will be produced by this company during the coming season. The "film operas", an innovation and although she is now 37, her popularity still ranks high. She will make talking pictures. And George LeMaire, of the musical comedy producing game, is making two real talkies for the same company.

The company expects to produce "Pagliacci", "Cavalleria Rusticana", "Faust", "Martha", "Tales of Hoffman", "Carmen" and "Aida". This list will bring the work of old masters to the public through a medium that none of the composers lived to see or probably ever dreamed of.

"Pagliacci" was composed by R. Leoncavallo and was first presented at the Teatro Del Verni in

The Oak Lawn farm, owned by W. B. Bryson and son, has purchased a colt sired by John A. McKerron, 2:04 1-2, the fastest stallion in the United States and holder of several world's records.

The fund raised by subscription through the efforts of John T. Harbine, Jr., has been used to buy a pair of registered thoroughbred bloodhounds for Xenia.

The bottom has dropped out of Cedarville's long talked of paper mill plant. Mr. P. H. Flynn is a business visitor in Chicago, Ill. "The Man of the Hour," which will be offered in Xenia soon, will be presented by the same company that produced the play at the Victory in Dayton a few weeks ago.

Milan, May 21, 1892. "Cavalleria Rusticana" is the best known work of Pietro Mascagni and its premier was at Rome May 17, 1890.

Charles Gounod, celebrated French composer, wrote "Faust" and its premier was at the Theater Lyrique in Paris March 19, 1859. "Martha" was the masterpiece of F. von Flotow and was presented a court opera in Vienna, November 25, 1847. "Tales of Hoffman" by J. Offenbach saw its premier at Paris February 1, 1881.

"Carmen" was the work of G. Bizet, French composer and was first presented at the Opera Comique in Paris March 3, 1875. "Aida" was written by G. Verdi, Italian musician, and appeared first in the Cairo, Egypt Opera House December 24, 1871. With their presentation, grand opera comes to the masses. Josiah Zuro, director general of music for Pathe, will direct the "film operas."

Pathe is also announcing that it is leading Ina Claire, famed Broadway favorite, to the silversheet. Miss Claire has long been a favorite of the musical comedy stage.

The Theater

Not so long ago the movies were believed to be at the opposite pole from grand opera but there is proof that circumstances alter cases—cases of anything. The proof comes with the announcement of Pathe that seven grand operas will be produced by this company during the coming season. The "film operas," an innovation in the world of interpretive art, brings a new alliance to the entertainment world. Who knows but what opera will be popularized by placing it within the means of the midlander pocketbook.

The company expects to produce "Pagliacci," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Faust," "Martha," "Tales of Hoffman," "Carmen" and "Aida." This list will bring the work of old masters to the public through a medium that none of the composers lived to see or probably ever dreamed of.

"Pagliacci" was composed by R. Leoncavallo and was first presented at the Teatro Del Verdi in

HOME REMEDY WEEK COMING MAR. 17-23

CHICAGO, March 8.—The Good Samaritan figures in the 1929 "First Aid—Home Remedy Week" and is designed as the "First First Aid." This annual merchandising festival arrives with St. Patrick's Day, continues March 17 to 23 and marks the eighth anniversary of the plan dedicated to drugism by Sterling Products, Incorporated, in 1922 and immediately sponsored by the National Association of Retail Druggists. Seeing the great advertising and sales possibilities in the plan and its helpfulness to humanity, the National Wholesale Druggists' Association has swung behind it with the enthusiastic suggestion that druggists use local newspapers, and providing them with suggestive advertising copy tied to the national slogan, "Fill That Medicine Chest Now!"

Coming at a time when housewives are thinking of house cleaning, the command has added psychological sales value. Secretary S. C. Henry of the N. A. R. D., out of long experience says: "No one knows better than the average retail druggist how much needless suffering there is because most people are neglectful in the matter of making provision for the hour of need which is sure to come when sudden illness or unforeseen accident calls for immediate attention."

"Quick Relief Insurance" is the new definition of First Aid—Home Remedy Week's objective, and is thus bringing the nation's "Health Service Stations" into closer every day life.

KNOCKLESS

IN the thick of traffic when "Stop" or "Go" is a matter of seconds, it's no time for the "ping-pong" of a slow acting motor fuel. Your own mental comfort demands a fuel free from knocks—one that needs no coaxing.

That's why Loreco 88 Ethyl has achieved such popularity among motorists. It starts instantly in coldest weather, and completely "knocks out" that "knock" on the heavy pull or quick acceleration.

KNOCKLESS

IN the thick of traffic when "Stop" or "Go" is a matter of seconds, it's no time for the "ping-pong" of a slow acting motor fuel. Your own mental comfort demands a fuel free from knocks—one that needs no coaxing.

That's why Loreco 88 Ethyl has achieved such popularity among motorists. It starts instantly in coldest weather, and completely "knocks out" that "knock" on the heavy pull or quick acceleration.
